PRESIDENT HAS NEW PLANS FOR ENDING RAILWAY SHOPMEN'S STRIKE

Union Leaders in Washington for Conference at the White House—Either Early Settlement or Rapid Extension of the Strike to Other Workers is Predicted by Government Officials.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Aug. 5.—The railway strike moved swiftly toward a crisis today.

Developments have crystallized to a point where a quick break in the tense situation may be expected within 48 hours, according to government officials in close touch with conditions.

The break may come in the direction of peace or toward a more serious condition of affairs through the spread of the strike to other classes of other railway workers besides the federated shop crafts. The opinion prevailing among officials was that it would be in the direction of peace.

Hard on the heels of the increasingly menacing aspect of the situation, and contributing to the belief that important steps are impending, were these developments:

1—B. M. Jewell, national director of the shopmen's strike, and William H. Johnston, president of the International Association of Machinists, the largest single union involved in the tie-up, reappeared in Washington for renewal of conferences with President Harding.

2—Officials of the powerful "Big Four" brotherhoods were quietly gathering here to bring their grievances to the attention of the government, with the plain threat in the background that they will be compelled to join the walkout unless there is a sudden settlement of mechanical conditions on the roads.

President Harding, it was reported today, has determined upon a fresh line of action designed to bring the strike to a speedy end, and this will form the substance of his renewed conversations with the strikers' spokesmen at the White House today. Administration officials were chary of commenting today upon any "new plans," but it is understood that Charles H. McChord, chairman of the interstate commerce commission, has had a hand in their preparation.

The greatest factor in the situation, it was generally conceded by administration spokesmen, is the implied threat of the independent brotherhoods, engineers, firemen, trainmen and conductors to join in the tie-up. For these vitally essential workmen to leave their posts would complete paralysis of the whole transportation industry and create a condition from which it would take months to recover.

The attitude of the brotherhoods, who are members of the American Federation of Labor and who have a record of never joining in a "sympathetic strike," was fully summed up in their joint telegram to the White House, which said:

"The plain intention of the railroad executives to smash the shopcraft unions is resulting in more and more of the locomotives and equipment getting into disrepair and the dangers of a most hazardous occupation are being daily increased.

"We fear that a continuation of these conditions will inevitably result in our members, as a matter of self-protection, being drawn into the controversy and we greatly deplore such a contingency."

Among President Harding's advisers today the intervention of the four great brotherhoods into the strike was, if not actually welcomed, at least looked upon as a development that would bring matters to a showdown and afford relief from what one cabinet officer described as the present "intolerable situation."

For one thing, it was said, it will tend to soften the attitude of the railway executives, and make them more amenable to compromise proposals than they were when the Harding peace program was turned down so quickly in New York last Tuesday.

KINGSTON GAS & ELECTRIC TO SUPPLY CURRENT TO CORNELL AND U. & D. SHOPS

Contract Made Covering a Term of Years and Shop Electric Generating Plants Heretofore in Use Will be Abandoned —High Tension Lines to be Extended.

Arrangements have been made by the Ulster and Delaware Railroad and the Cornell Steamboat Company with the Kingston Gas and Electric Company to furnish for a period of years electricity for operating and lighting of the repair shops and all other electrical energy heretofore furnished by the Ulster and Delaware power house and the Cornell plant.

This move on the part of the officials of both companies means the abandonment of the existing electrical power plants of both the railroad and steamboat company and it will give the Kingston Gas and Electric Company a substantial increase in the quantity of power distributed in this locality. Extension of the company's high tension lines in order to furnish this power will be necessary.

STRIKEBREAKERS ARE ARRIVING

Rumors that the Ulster and Delaware Railroad expected a number of strikebreakers to arrive on the night boat caused a large number of railroad shopmen now out on strike and those who sympathize with them to gather at the railroad yards on the Strand.

The police department was notified of the gathering and took steps to have officers on hand. The strikebreakers, to the number of six, arrived on the New York Central train at Rhinecliff about 11:20 o'clock Friday evening and were brought across the river on a tug.

They were taken to the railroad station where they were quartered for the night. There was no demonstration or outbreak of any kind on the part of the strikers.

WELCOMES BUS LINES.

Newburgh Does Not Impose a High Tax On Them.

Kingston Common Council is having various problems in connection with bus lines to take care of, and at a recent meeting Alderman Beichert remarked, apropos of something proposed, that "the council wants to be fair with the busmen, as is evidenced by the fact that in Newburgh and other cities franchise taxes ranging from $200 to $300 are being levied." One would think that a councilman of Kingston or any other city before stating something as a fact would be sure of his information. Mr. Beichert is hereby advised that Newburgh has no place on his high "franchise tax" list. Newburgh welcomes bus lines and appreciates the benefit they are. Its annual tax is very modest, and its regulations are not at all irksome.—Newburgh News.

Services at St. James's.

The Rev. C. S. Oakley, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church of Monroe, N. Y., will preach in St. James's Methodist Episcopal Church tomorrow morning. There will be no service in the evening. On August 13, the Rev. G. E. Wright, D. D., of Port Ewen will preach, on August 20 the Rev. R. P. Ingersoll will preach and on August 27 the Rev. O. A. Merchant will have charge of the service. The church will be closed every Sunday evening in August.

Divorce Granted.

A decree of divorce has been granted plaintiff by Supreme Court Justice G. D. B. Hasbrouck in the action brought by Mary Mac Morris against Frederick J. Mac Morris. The plaintiff resides in this city. The parties were married at Olive Bridge, December 19, 1906. Plaintiff is granted $40 a month alimony and $75 costs. William D. Brinnier and William D. Brinnier, Jr., are attorneys for the plaintiff.

STORM DAMAGE IN CONNECTICUT

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New Haven, Ct., Aug. 5.—Aiden McMahon was killed by lightning while working in his garage in Unionville, Herman Smith of Bloomfield was injured when lightning struck and burned his barn, three barns of Andrew Weidikon in Suffield were burned with a loss of $5,000, roads and fields were flooded, electric lights and telephones temporarily put out of business and street railway traffic suspended by flooded tracks and washouts, a series of thunder showers late yesterday.

Lightning struck in many places and hail fell in some parts of the tobacco belt. Crops were badly damaged by wind and rain in all parts of the state.

DE VALERA PREPARES TO FLEE TO THE MOUNTAINS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Dublin, Aug. 5.—Eamonn de Valera is preparing to flee into the Irish mountains to assume the life of a guerrilla chieftain, according to reports reaching here today from the "front."

De Valera is said to be seen daily on the border of Limerick and Tipperary counties with a ride slung over his shoulder, leading his forces. His "soldiers" are said to be mainly young schoolboys.

The Free State troops continue their advance towards the southwest. The irregular stronghold at Kilmallock is being surrounded and its capture is expected hourly.

The Free State troops that were landed at Kerry are proceeding in the direction of Listowel. A number of small towns have been captured on the west coast.

BLOCK PARTY AT WILBUR TONIGHT

The Holy Name Church of Wilbur planned to hold a block party Friday evening on Wilbur avenue, but rain prevented the many who gathered for the evening's pleasure from dancing on the Willite, and the dance was held in the Holy Name Church Hall.

It is not expected to rain this evening and the Rev. Thomas J. Corbett said that the party would be held under the original conditions. The electric lighting will also be provided and the postponement of one evening is not expected to hinder the large crowd who previously intended to be present.

Tom McCarthy Dead.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Boston, Aug. 5.—Tom McCarthy, former big league baseball player and later scout for the Boston Red Sox, died at his home at Upham's Corners early today. Death was due to cancer. McCarthy was 59 years old.

"BEAT-UP" SQUAD BEAT WRONG MAN

Systematic Intimidation by Alleged Strikers Who Patrol Street and Trespass on Private Property Culminates in Assault and Pistol Firing.

The first shot in the railroad strike in this city was fired about ten o'clock Friday night on Fair street extension, close to the Rose-Gorman-Rose store, but did not find its mark. It created plenty of excitement, however, among the innocent pedestrians on Wall and Fair streets as well as among the innocent guests at the Mitchell House. The shot was fired in an encounter between three alleged strike-breakers and a party of about fifteen alleged strikers who had assembled earlier in the evening on the Saugerties road just outside the city limits and who were brought in automobiles to the neighborhood of the trouble, when they took possession of the neighborhood, both on streets and private property.

The victim of Friday night's affair was S. M. Johnston of Middletown, who had come on the late afternoon train from Middletown to take the place, as he believed, of a man who was sick, and not as a strikebreaker, and who had not intended to go to work until this morning. The "beat-up" detail of the strikers found him in company with two other men and tackled the trio, but Johnston gave a good account of himself with his fists until he received a blow with a billy which almost split open his ear. When the pistol shot was fired, Johnston was left lying on the sidewalk alongside the Rose-Gorman-Rose store, but was able to make his way unaided to the Mitchell House, where he had engaged a room on his arrival in Kingston about six o'clock.

The "beat-up" squad of the strikers said they were after a strikebreaker on whom a recent attack was made at Kingston Point, and who rooms within three or four blocks from the New York, Ontario & Western railroad station. The "beat-up" squad had announced their intention to "get him" and for several nights have arrived in the vicinity of the Ontario & Western station in automobiles, taking possession of nearby property and helping themselves generously to farm produce raised on the lowland farms. "Picket duty" of the "beat up" squad of the strikers, which is for three hours for each man, has proved a profitable "duty" for the "pickets" and their families in this respect.

The "beat-up" squad arrived as usual Friday night and took possession of property nearby, also patrolling the streets in addition to the usual pickets who have been doing day and night duty near the house where the strikebreaker whom they have decided to "get" has his room.

Johnston was coming up the hill from the railroad station with two other men when he was attacked. The alleged strikebreaker, who rooms nearby, started to run, with part of the "beat-up" squad in pursuit, and they succeeded in getting close enough to tear his coat from his back on Wall street. The others turned their attention to Johnston and his companion. The latter succeeded in getting away, but Johnston, not knowing the reason for the attack, and anyway deciding that his American blood required him to fight back, put up a hard fight with his fists until he was clubbed with a billy. About that time a pistol shot was fired from the struggling group, and the "beat-up" squad broke ranks and fled.

The matter was reported to the police and a special detail was hurried to the scene, but the excitement by that time had abated on the street and none of the "beat-up" squad could be found.

GASOLENE PRICE CUT.

Standard Oil Announces Reduction of 2 Cents a Gallon.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Aug. 5.—A reduction of the price of gasolene from 27 cents a gallon to 25 cents was made Friday by the Standard Oil Company of New York, to be effective throughout its territory. This follows the announcement of a similar cut in the New Jersey territory yesterday.

The retail price of gasolene is usually from 2 to 3 cents higher than the wholesale price, so that the cut announced will probably bring the price down from 29 to 30 cents a gallon, which service stations are charging at present, from 27 to 28 cents.

The price of V. M. P. naphtha, used in the mixing of paints, was also reduced two cents a gallon by the Standard Oil Company, the new price being 24 cents.

The above shows the favorable conditions that have prevailed in Kingston this summer, gasoline having retailed here ever since the Kingston Oil Company began business at 25 cents a gallon, two cents below the wholesale price in New York city. Whether the reduction of the wholesale price in New York to 25 cents a gallon will result in a reduction in Kingston remains to be seen.

At the Dr. C. O. Sahler Sanitarium.

This evening the annual fair will be held in Sahler Park. All are cordially invited to share in the fun of the evening.

On Sunday evening at 8 o'clock Clifford Cheasley of New York and London will lecture on "The Science of Numbers."

LABOR LIKELY TO ASK DOLLAR A DAY FOR WAR CHEST FROM EMPLOYED MEN

Leaders Preparing to Issue a Formal Call for Financial Support—Railway Telegraphers Have Already Been Asked to Give One Day's Pay to Aggregate $300,000.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Aug. 5.—Organized labor, mobilizing for what easily may be its greatest struggle, today began the massing of a huge "war chest" to support the railroad shopcrafts in their nation-wide strike.

While union leaders throughout the country were preparing to issue the formal call for raising a gigantic strike fund, officials of the Order of Railroad Conductors today flatly predicted that tens of thousands of train service employes in all classes will be forced to quit their posts if the railroads continue to operate crippled equipment.

Spokesmen for the conductors echoed the warning of engineer and firemen brotherhood officials that accidents will shortly result from use of deefective rolling stock.

Labor's "war chest," it was learned, was launched with an appeal to 80,000 members of the Order of Railway Telegraphers to donate one full day's pay in support of the striking shopcrafts This union alone will raise $300,000 for the strike fund, it was said.

Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, it was authoritatively learned, will shortly appeal to the rank and file of organized labor to mobilize their financial resources to back the strikers in a "showdown fight." A "dollar a day" from each organized workman, it was said, would create a fund totaling $4,000,000.

"Use of defective equipment on the railroads is a constant menace to life and limb and conductors absolutely will not continue to work under these conditions," was the flat declaration today of William Clark, vice-president of the Order of Railroad Conductors, in announcing his union supported the stand taken by the engineers and firemen.

"Coercion is being used in some cases to get the brotherhood men to do the work of strike breakers" Clark continued. "Conditions are deplorable and if the rail executives brand these charges as ridiculous, my only answer is that they themselves will look ridiculous within a few days."

H. E. Wills, vice-president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, declared today:

"Each day finds us closer to a showdown. The men operating the trains cannot hold out much longer. The railroad managements are treading on very dangerous ground. The locomotive power of the nation is being swept away at a ratio that will shortly result in one of two things, first, the absolute stoppage of transportation, and, second, the occurrence of railroad wrecks. The executives know this. The public doesn't.

OHIO MINE OPERATORS PREDICT SUCCESS OF JOINT CONFERENCE

Quick Action Expected That Will Result in Signing of Scale by Operators and District Officials and Resuming of Mine Operations Next Week.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 5.—Quick action looking for an agreement upon the 1921 wage scale as a basis for the resumption of coal mining at union mines throughout the country, when the joint conference called by President John L. Lewis convenes here Monday, is predicted by coal operators here today.

Unlike previous wage conferences, no time is expected to be wasted in preliminaries, but it was confidently said that the joint conference would get down to "brass tacks" immediately.

"There will be representation of operators here from every field in the central competitive field, as well as Michigan and northern West Virginia," International News Service was told. "As soon as the basic wage is agreed upon district officials of the United Mine Workers will be authorized to negotiate either with operators as a body or as individuals and all who sign the scale will be permitted to resume. I believe that before the end of next week every union field will be shipping coal."

"BIG FOUR" CHIEFS AWAIT REPLY

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 5.—Chiefs of three of the "Big Four" railroad brotherhoods are due today awaiting a reply from President Harding to the telegram sent last night to Washington asking for a conference at which they may present their views to the chief executive upon the strike of the railroad shopmen.

It was declared in the message to the president that the "strike is daily developing into a more serious situation."

"Defective equipment and the action of armed guards are endangering the lives of our men daily" said President D. B. Robertson of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen. "The situation is extremely critical and we must protect our men. I hope that the president will set an early date for the conference."

The message to the president was signed by Warren S. Stone, grand chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers; W. G. Lee, president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, and Mr. Robertson, of the Firemen.

Lord Northcliffe Worse.

London, Aug. 5.—Lord Northcliffe, famous British publisher, who is suffering from heart weakness, was worse today. He passed a poor night and was weakened by sleeplessness.

PICKET SHOT BY STRIKEBREAKER

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Newark, O., Aug. 5.—Moses Slocum, colored, of St. Louis, a strike breaker, employed at the Baltimore and Ohio shops here, who also claims to be a United States deputy marshal, is under arrest today, and John Kolman, a striking employe, is dead, and Postoli Sisi, another striker, is in a hospital with a shot through his groin, as a result of a shooting affray late last night near the Baltimore and Ohio station here.

Slocum claims that he fired the shots in self-defense, while Sisi asserts that he and Kolman were engaged in peaceful picketing.

Knights of St. John's Excursion.

The Knights of St. John have everything in readiness and are anxiously waiting for Sunday morning at 6:45 o'clock, when the Homer Ramsdell sets sail for New York city with the large crowd of excursionists. Tickets may be secured from any of the members up until the boat leaves.

5,000 Dead in Swatow.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, Aug. 5.—At least 5,000 persons were killed in the typhoon which ravaged Swatow, China, according to a despatch from Hong Kong today. Thousands are homeless. Relief has been sent.

MOTORCYCLE AND AUTO COLLIDED

Leroy Peck of Wilbur avenue, and Charles Rugar of Spruce street, riding motorcycle sustained minor injuries when they collided with a Dodge car this morning at Abeel street and Wilbur avenue. The driver of the Dodge stopped and conveyed the two to the Kingston City Hospital where they had their wounds treated and later left for their homes. The owner of the Dodge car was not ascertained.

RAPID PROGRESS MADE IN BUILDING NEW U. & D. SHOPS

Work on the Ulster and Delaware shops is progressing rapidly, all the piles which support the concrete supports having been driven and half of the concrete supports been set in place. It is very interesting to note that water from the creek has come this far back to the holes which are being dug around the poles so that the concrete forms may be set. The roof on the old Bluestone building is now completely off and the traveling crane will be taken down within a very few days.

ITALIAN FACTIONS STILL FIGHTING

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Rome, Aug. 5—Thirty persons have been killed and more than 100 wounded in the fighting which has been raging between Fascisti and Socialist-Communist forces in northern Italy, according to advices received here today from the seat of hostilities.

Fighting between Fascisti and Socialists was still in progress today in the cities of the industrial districts of northern Italy. The situation at Milan and Genoa is critical. The Fascisti raided the plant of a Socialist newspaper at Milan, wrecking it. At Genoa Communists and Socialists invaded the fashionable residential district. Police undertook to drive them out and a furious battle ensued.

London, Aug. 5.—Twenty thousand Fascisti have occupied the city of Parma, seizing the executive machinery, said a Central News despatch this morning. The Socialists and Communists have been expelled from Sampierdarlena.

Violent fighting in raging in northern Italy particularly in the regions of Milan and Genoa, according to the Central News. Both sides are using machine guns. The gendarmerie is practically helpless.

One Speeder Caught.

Aaron Goldenberg of New York city was arrested Friday afternoon by Officer Keuhn on a charge of speeding 31 miles an hour. He gave bail for his appearance later.

FRANCE'S TERMS TO GERMANY LESS DRASTIC THAN EXPECTED

Penal Measures are Financial Rather Than Military, Amounting to Seizure of Property of Germans Wherever Found in French Territory.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Paris, August5—A new French note, replying to a German communication received during the morning, sent forward to Berlin this afternoon revealing the new "sanctions" (penalties) which France is imposing upon Germany to enforce payment of private loans and indemnity. They are financial in character, not military.

The "French high calibre shell which was to have been exploded against Germany with the expiration of the French ultimatum of July 28 turned out to be a dud. The new measures which France is imposing relate only to Alsace and Lorraine and were not nearly so stern as had been anticipated.

The French note said in part:

"Replying to the dilatory response of Germany France takes the following measures to safeguard the interests of Paris and Strasbourg (capital of Alsace-Lorraine):

"First—Recognition of German credits to be suspended;

"Second—No credits are to be granted Germany for the sale of sequestrated German property;

"Third—Germany will not be notified of the sales of these properties, making it impossible for Germany to recompense the owners;

Fourth—Suspend arrangements of Germans in Alsace by which they were to move their property into Germany;

"Fifth—Instruct banks and other creditors in Alsace-Lorraine owing money to Germans to suspend payment and to hold such sums for requisition by the French."

The German note has stated that Germany took the view that compensation to private creditors was inseparable from reparations and that no arrangement could be made regarding this issue without an agreement with Great Britain and Belgium.

Immediately after the German document was received Premier Poincare and other members of the cabinet took it under consideration and a reply was penned immediately.

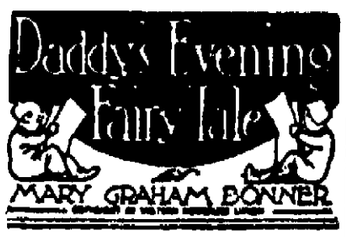
BASIS OF SETTLEMENT REACHED IN CHICAGO STREET RAILWAY STRIKE

Compromise Virtually Agreed on and Tie-up Will End Within 24 Hours—Union Concedes Wage Reduction and Roads Waive Nine-Hour Day.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Aug. 5.—A basis of compromise has been reached in Chicago's street railroad strike, which virtually assures the end of the tie-up within 24 hours, according to an official report to Secretary of Labor Davis today from two federal conciliators, Oscar F. Nelson and B. M. Marshman.

The report from the conciliators said the wage question had been adjusted on a basis of 70 cents an hour, a reduction of 13½ percent in wages and the traction company had abandoned its contention for a 9-hour day.



DIFFERENT CREATURES

"We have a fine sign over our heads," said some of the snakes in the zoo as they wriggled and hissed.

"Yes, we have," they hissed again.

"Some of us," said Mr. Gopher Snake, "such as ourselves and the Pine Snake family and the Black Snake family have a sign over our cages which reads that we are snakes of economic value.

"That means that we are snakes with the power to do good which we do, too. We eat bad insects and help the crops in that way."

"Oh," said the white mice, "we have such cunning little houses in our zoo homes. And we run in and out of the front doors of our houses and feel like little people. Yes, we feel most important."

"I was very much pleased a few moments ago," said one of the white mice, "because a small child came up to see me and then ran over to her brother and said:

"'Oh Bobby, come and see the dear wee mouse. Oh, you dear little mouse,' she said to me over and over again.

"'What darling pink eyes and what a cunning trembling little nose you have,' she said to me.

"Of course, I knew I had these things, but it was nice to think that she admired them so much.

"And over and over and over again—oh, I can't begin to tell you how often she said it—she repeated, 'oh, you dear little mouse, you dear little mouse!'

"Now I must run in my little house again."

So the little mouse ran into his little house which was like a little doll's house instead of his cage in the zoo. And the other white mice had houses just like this one.

The rattlesnakes then began to talk. "We belong to the Pit-Viper family. Pit-Vipers have long hollow fangs. When our fangs are not in use we leave them to lie against the roof of the mouth. That is to say that each pit-viper has his fangs lying against the roof of his mouth when he is not using them to poison anyone. The poison glands are behind our eyes and connect with the fangs. Oh, yes, it is all very well arranged for, very well indeed."

"Our poisoning is not always fatal which means something quite dreadful! Though, of course, it is not dreadful to use!"

"You Dear Little Mouse."

"I don't like the way you talk, Snakes," said a little animal about the size of a large rat. He wore a speckled grayish coat and was very nice looking with a very sweet expression. His face was pointed and his tail was long.

"I come from India, you know, and there I am a house pet just as you make a pet of a pussy cat in this country. My name is Indian Mongoose.

"Now a pussy cat keeps away the mice and I keep away the snakes in my country.

"Yes, we're not only nice little pets but we're brave and fearless and we do keep snakes out of the houses, for snakes would bother us in our country. Yes, snakes would bother us in our houses just as mice bother families in this country.

"Oh, we never mind fighting snakes bigger and stronger than we are. We're quite famous for this. We aren't made pets of in this country, for we might do the same thing to the poultry, but then we don't run wild in this country or any way at all.

"We're to be found in zoos now and again, however."

"I," said the Gila Monster, "come from Mexico. I am the only known poisonous lizard. Our family has this right all to ourselves. Some may not think it is much of a right, but we do not care about that. We are poisonous and we are pleased that it is so.

"We are salmon and gray in color and are not very large though our name is that of Monster. Of course, we're large lizards, but we're not such as most people would think of when they think of monsters. I've heard that this is so."

"Don't forget me. I'm by your side, sharing your home with you," said the Spike-Tailed Lizard from the dry and rocky regions of Southern Africa. I am a queer sandy brown-looking creature and my tail is spikelike in appearance and my body is, too. I am like a very big lizard, but as no one would notice me, I said a word for myself." And so the zoo creatures talked.

HOUSEHOLD HELPS

To keep kerosene lamps sweet—always have several wicks for the lamp, and often remove the wick and burner, boiling and cleansing in an old dish kept for that purpose; add soap, powder and washing soda, then rinse well after boiling.

When stamps stick together, just cover with a piece of tissue paper and press with a warm iron; they separate easily and can be used again without the addition of mucilage.

When mending wall paper, if a small hole is torn, tear the paper instead of cutting it, the irregular edge will paste down and not be so noticeable as a nicely cut patch.

An egg saver which will be useful again is this: One tablespoonful of gelatin softened in cold water, then enough hot water added to finish the process, using altogether one cupful of water. This will take the place of three egg whites in making a white cake. Beat the gelatin with an egg beater and add to the cake.

When using a wringer with two thumb screws use both hands in screwing so that the pressure is even. Remove the pressure when not in use, thus prolonging the life of the wringer.

Elastic makes a fine curtain rod; run it into the sash curtains and fasten with a loop over a brass tack at each side. Cut the elastic about three inches shorter than the space.

When cutting slices from a ham to be kept at home, cover the cut surface with melted paraffin, which keeps it fresh and free from mold. Treat cheese in the same way.

Rust may be removed by rubbing well with a slice of onion; let it stand 24 hours, rub with turpentine and the rust will vanish.

Children will learn to sew, happily, making things for their dolls.

If mayonnaise curdles in the making, start all over again, using another egg yolk, adding the curdled mixture, a small amount at a time, until all is well blended.

Homer Wrote of Lotus Eaters.

A race of people, known as the lotus eaters, mentioned in Homer's Odyssey as dwelling on the northeast coast of Africa, and visited by Ulysses in his wanderings after the fall of Troy, lived on the fruit of a plant called the lotus, the taste of which was so delightful as to cause utter forgetfulness of home on the part of those that partook of it. In historic times the Greeks gave this name to a people that dwelt on the northern coast of Africa, between the Syrtes, and used as an article of food a plant supposed to be identical with the lotus of Homer.

Fated to Be Bachelors.

Probably no man of fame has gone to a bachelor grave without one or more narrow escapes from Cupid's darts, however indifferently he may have professed to regard love, observes a London Tit-Bits writer. Even Alexander Pope, with all his grotesque deformity, was as vulnerable as any Adonis of his day. He lost his heart a dozen times to as many women, from Martha Blount, his boyhood's sweetheart, to Lady Mary Wortley Montague, who referred to him on one occasion as "a great baboon." And it is said that one of his lady loves killed herself when her guardians sent her abroad to cure her of her infatuation.

Dynamiters Driven Away

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Brownsville, Pa., Aug. 5.—Seven men who were about to dynamite a Pennsylvania railroad bridge near McClelland town early today were driven away by a hot fire from railroad police guarding the structure. Several cries of agony followed the guards' volley and it is believed one of the invaders were hit though all of them escaped. Monongahela branch hauls coal from non-union mines. Two other bridges on this branch have been dynamited within a week.

VICE SUPPRESSER WOULD CENSOR ALL MANUSCRIPTS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Aug. 5.—Baseball has a Landis to keep the diamond heroes straight, motion pictures have a Hays to tell the pretty ladies how much silk and lace they must wear, and the drama has a Thomas to lead it toward the stars, but freeborn American authors will never submit to a Pecksniffian pro consul of morals—no, not by all the Olympian gods that be.

This was the consensus of opinion expressed to International News Service today when some of the better known writers were asked whether they approved of the proposals advanced by John S. Summer, secretary of the New York Society for the Suppression of Vice, that a committee, or super lord, be named to pass on all manuscripts before they are published, in order to protect the morals of the public.

Every writer with whom this subject was discussed frankly and openly disapproved of censorship.

Mary Johnston, distinguished authoress, dismissed Sumner's plan scornfully, saying "The idea is unjust and an absurdity."

Samuel Merwin believes that Sumner has started something that, in street parlance, he cannot finish. "It seems to me that Mr. Sumner takes a position that makes it necessary for him to prosecute every publisher of the Old Testament," he said. "He seeks to make himself not only the custodian of morals but also of the geniuses of English literature. I'm afraid that he is not equal to the job."

Nina Wilcox Putnam considers censorship a danger. "It is practically impossible for any one man to say what is moral and what is immoral in a book," she explained. "The danger that this plan presents is that Mr. Sumner wants to prevent history being written

"All history is not in the textbooks. "A great deal is contained in those works that present the life and times of a people. Some of the world's classics contain salacious sections. But would we ban the Odyssey—or any other great work—because of it?"

Sophie Kerr said emphatically "No" to the super lord idea.

"Mr. Sumner's proposal is harmful because a censorship would call attention to the very things that we wish to avoid," she averred. "Not only does he exaggerate the dangers of this sort of literature, but he exaggerates the amount that is published. I have a great faith in the ultimate decency of the American public—it needs no super lord to say what shall not be printed."

Fannie Hurst said:

"I do not think that the predominating characteristic of American literature warrants the appointment of a national arbiter of morals.

"While the appointment of such men as Mr. Thomas, Mr. Hays and Judge Landis shows an encouraging improvement in the type of mind that is being selected for this overlord kind of job, I feel that a literary censorship at this time would be not only unwise but could be extremely harmful."

LITTLE TALKS ON THRIFT

by S. W. STRAUS, President American Society for Thrift.

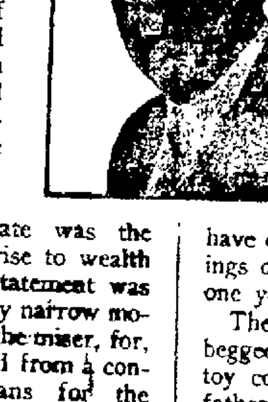
"Even five cents should not be wilfully wasted. Remember, it is the interest on one dollar for almost an entire year."

This statement recently was made by one of the wealthiest and most successful financiers in the world when he witnessed his secretary paying out five cents where it represented an absolute waste.



Perhaps if we were to analyze the great success of this man we would find that his keen appreciation and consistent application of the principle involved in his kindly rebuke to his subordinate associate was the real secret of his rise to wealth and power. His statement was not prompted by any narrow motives suggestive of the miser, for, he had just emerged from a conference where plans for the donation of millions of dollars for philanthropic purposes had been under discussion.

The point he had in mind was that the deliberate waste of even a very small amount is reprehensible, and has ultimate effects far in excess of the amount immediately involved.

Thrift, in its broadest aspects, is efficiency; and there can be no efficiency where there is deliberate waste.

The point is worth a permanent place in our rules of personal conduct that when we waste a five-cent piece we are throwing away the earning power of a dollar for practically one whole year. And let us keep just as steadfastly in mind the fact that when we save a nickel we are conserving the earning power of a dollar for almost an entire twelve months.

Suppose we keep a record of the amount we actually waste during the next thirty days, and discover that this sum is six dollars. We then have dissipated the normal earnings of one hundred dollars for one year!

The story is told of a boy who begged his father for a certain toy costing $200, to which the father replied: "Son, which would you rather have, this plaything or one dollar a month for life?" And the boy wisely chose the latter. What the father had in mind was that the $200 could be invested to yield $12 a year plus a lesson in thrift worth many, many times that amount.

When we are tempted to waste even the smallest amounts, let us remember these points and profit by them.

Improves Casein Glues.

The addition of copper salts to casein glues has been found to increase their resistance to moisture and make them more durable.

The Urge of Success.

Once the task of success gets you, there is born an eternal urge unsatisfied with inferior things. It compels success. The problems that discourage weaklings put fire into the blood and make men irresistible. The neighbors wonder how it all happens. It doesn't happen. It's just nature asserting herself and worthy youth coming into his own.—Exchange.

FRIENDS OF STATE RIGHTS.

Maine has added itself to the short list of states—New York, Massachusetts and Rhode Island—which by their action in connection with the Sheppard-Towner bill have placed themselves in determined opposition to "further encroachments of the Federal power." These four states refuse to accept the Federal money made available by the bill named for education in maternity and the care of children, holding that a state can and should look after such education within its own borders by means of its department of health, and that the time has come to resist the ever-widening effort of Congress to follow the citizens of the states with a watchful, paternal eye, in their going out and coming in, their lying down and rising up, their eating and drinking, and even their giving birth.

The other states, so far as reported, will take the appropriation without reluctance and even with eagerness, presumably on the principle that whenever there is any money to be handed out the man or state not ready to grab his or its share at the first opportunity is a fool. The inconspicuous but unbreakable string attached is overlooked. The continuing surrender of a state's constitutionally guaranteed rights is not considered; the vital importance of maintaining a state's right to independent action—within certain prescribed limits—is forgotten. And so, gradually, government from Washington is being substituted for local self-government, and our constitutionally provided dual system—each with its own properly specified sphere—is slowly but surely breaking down, the Federal power at Washington is slowly but surely encroaching and coming into control of practically everything of any account.

Governor Baxter of Maine well says that his state "will not sell its birthright," noting that "the founders of this government saw the menace of Federal control, and from Washington's time to the present our greatest statesmen have warned against it." In former times this utterance would have pleased only Democrats, but the indications are that now it will receive hearty support from Republicans. From Thomas Jefferson's first administration in 1800 until a decade or so ago the Democrats unitedly fought the "menace of Federal control." First, under the name of "Republicans," they fought the centralizing Federalists, then under the name of Democrats they fought the Whigs and later the modern Republicans on the same issue. From the time the Republicans took the place of the dying Whigs and incorporated the Free-Soilers in 1856 they have until recently stood unitedly for the centralization of power at Washington, the Federal government not being strong enough for their purposes at the outset.

As a matter of fact the Federal government was too weak in the earlier times, being subject to the dictation of powerful states which had voluntarily joined in its creation. But from being too weak it has now become too strong, too all-dominating, just as the old-time Democrats feared it would and as many reflecting Republicans are now uneasily aware. But in recent years the Democrats have practically abandoned their ancient doctrine, and have gaily and recklessly "galloped with the gang" engaged in surrendering practically everything of importance to the Federal power and thus helping steadily to weaken the once sacred principle of reserved rights or self-government constitutionally belonging to the states. It is a curious illustration of the surprises held in store by the whirligig of time that the four American commonwealths now making a sort of last stand for state rights are almost invariably found in the Republicans column.

In a satirical editorial, "Say It With Children," apropos of the delegation of little boys sent from Chicago to insist on the loan of the Liberty Bell contrary to the decision of the Philadelphia authorities, Agnes Repplier recalls that a similar delegation of children was sent to Washington to prevent President Wilson from going to war in 1917 and pointedly remarks that, though the children are the hope of the country, "the business of running it is still the painful duty of the adult."

Associations which spend their time attacking public officials, usually with innuendo rather than facts, could devote their energies to better business. It is a cheap practice and nowadays is cutting little figure. It seems to be pretty well agreed that the secretaries of these associations must do something to keep themselves on the personal pay roll of some philanthropist not aware of the manner in which these secretaries make a living.

What do you want to know about Nature Subjects? Send any questions of general interest to the Nature Notes Department of this paper, enclosing self-addressed and stamped envelope for reply.

Can You Answer These Questions.

2. Are the goldfinch and yellow-bird identical?
3. How can I get rid of garden slime slugs?

Answers in Monday's Nature Notes.

Answers To Previous Questions.

1. Will anything drive out the Canada thistle?

This thistle is troublesome because it is a perennial and spreads from a root stock under ground more than from its seed. Cutting the main stalk encourages the root to replace it by new shoots. Slashing the root results in new shoots at each end of the slash. Eternal vigilance in revisiting each plant and cutting back every new shoot will eventually tire out the root.

2. Is there any way to keep peach borers off from trees?

We don't know that the borers can be "kept off" after they have been hatched and have entered the trees. But as they are the larval form of a winged moth that lays eggs on the bark, it is possible to some extent to discourage the moth by banking the bottom of the trunk with dirt, in spring, and keeping it there till midsummer, as the moth lays toward the base of the trunk, and will not go through the dirt. Paper wrappings are sometimes used instead, to protect the trunk. Washes do not seem very effective, but may help somewhat.

3. Do any birds beside swallows build clay nests?

Yes, the cactus wren is an example. It makes an interesting nest shaped like a flask, and placed in a horizontal position in some thorny situation, with the entrance opening at the mouth of the flask.

MORE DYNAMITE IN BUFFALO STRIKE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Buffalo, Aug. 5.—Disorders continued in the local street car strike last night. One conductor was badly beaten on one of the first cars to run on the west side at night without a police guard, a policeman on a Seneca street car was struck by a railroad spike when a shower of scrap iron came raining through the windows, and dynamite was exploded at some points on the east side.

Dynamite was placed on the track at East Utica and Purdy streets, but beyond filling the car with smoke and shattering several windows, did no damage.

Dynamite was placed in East Ferry at Kehr street and was detonated by a Kensington car on which a patrolman was riding. He picked up several pieces of wrapper from the dynamite which showed it to be "Sixty per cent," which is the high powered stuff used in heavy blasting for construction work.

Gangsters armed with sling shots were operating at Michigan and Glenwood avenues and bombarded a Michigan car on which a patrolman and several passengers were riding. One of the missiles, traveling at a high rate of speed, passed through a window.

Torpedoes were placed on the tracks at Seneca and Keppel streets and at Genesee street and Walden avenue, but did no damage

LIGHTNING DAMAGE $500 TO THE LOCKWOOD BARN

Besides Edward Lockwood and Norman Kennedy, who were in the Lockwood barn on the Kingston-West Hurley road, Thursday afternoon when that barn was struck by lightning, and who each were shocked, there was also James Lockwood Edward states he was knocked about ten feet from where he was sitting near the barn door and completely turned around on the floor. James Lockwood says he was sitting on a box a few feet from a post and was also knocked over and was stunned for a time. He had at first intended sitting near the post and lean against it but fortunately changed his intention and moved the box a short distance away and leaned back with his head against the studding. The post was split by the lightning. The back part of the leather top of the buggy from which Norman Kennedy was knocked out of was badly torn by the lightning and the buggy was partly tipped over. Kennedy picking himself up off the floor of the barn aroused the Lockwood brothers by shouting, "Come and take the horses out," as he thought the barn was on fire which aroused them and the three men led the horses from the barn. The damage done to the barn by lightning it is estimated will cost $500 to repair. According to James and Edward Lockwood the old barn that burned down several years ago was not set on fire by lightning as has been generally understood, the opinion at the time being that it was the work of hoboes. At one time, however, lightning struck and shattered a telephone pole near where the barn stands.

HIGHWAY TRUCK HITS CURB, EMPLOYE IS HURT

The state highway department truck which carries the repair gang from this city to the highway which is being rebuilt near Pareis's garage on the upper Malden road and back each day, met with an accident Thursday evening and one of the men, Frank Smith, was hurt. The truck was homeward bound, and going too fast, according to the driver, Leland Boise. The rate of speed the truck was making down South Partition Street, coupled with the wet pavement made it impossible to round the corner property at the foot of the street, and consequently the truck hit the curb at Phillips's with a resounding bang, chipping out a large piece of the curb, and throwing the eight men out atop each other. All escaped injury except Smith who was taken to Dr Luther Emerick's office, where the doctor stitched together a scalp wound four inches long. The truck was not damaged and later the men continued on to their homes.

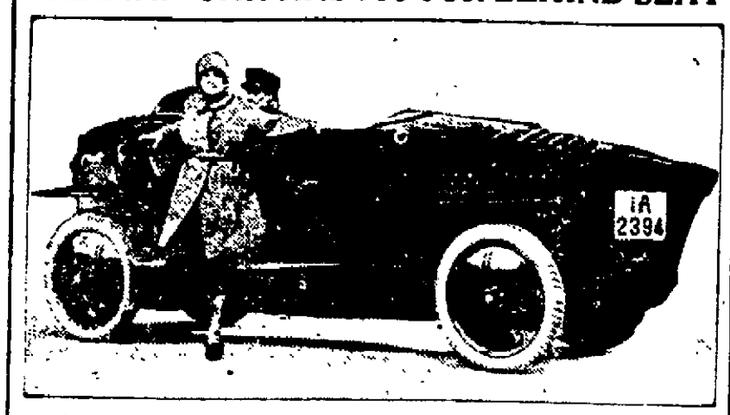
GERMAN CAR HAS MOTOR BEHIND SEAT



Fraulein Trude Hesterburg, Berlin theatrical star and owner of the well-known "Wilde-Buline" (Wilde Stage) theater, is seen starting out in her Rumpler raln-drop shaped touring car for a trip to Markische Seen, a popular watering place near the German capital.

This new auto was designed by the famous German aviator and maker of the Rumpler airplane and was exhibited at the recent auto show in Berlin. The motor is located in the rear of the machine instead of the front and the complete streamline makes it one of the most attractive and speedy cars in existence.

You Auto Know

That some cars have a tendency to leak oil from the right-hand wheel housing, even when no excess of lubricant is apparent anywhere else. This is due to the fact that the right side of the car is usually at a lower level than the left, especially when driving along country roads where macadam is designed to shed water into the ditches on either side. As a result of this leakage, the right-hand brake band is often covered with a thin film of oil which prevents it from functioning properly.

A simple remedy for this is to wrap a long strip of thin felt around the shaft, starting from the wheel end and working in a direction opposite to the forward motion of the wheel, covering the axle for a distance of about eight inches. The felt should then be fastened to the shaft with shellac and held in place by cord, tied around it several times. When the shaft is turned, the effect of this is to force the oil back toward the differential and away from the brakes.

PLAN TO PREVENT SKIDDING

Readjustment of Radius or Torque Rods Will Remedy Defect, Seldom Suspected.

When an automobile skids with the least cause and sometimes apparently without cause, the radius rods or torque tubes which hold the rear axle perpendicular to the center of the car are the reason. A bend or incorrect adjustment of one of these rods throws the center of the axle around and the wheels do not track, but tend to roll in an independent course. The rear end is naturally inclined to follow the wheels and skidding is the result.

This is one of the seldom suspected causes of skidding and the remedy is to take accurate measurements from the yoke-bolts at each side of the front axle to the rear axle and adjust or straighten the rods as required until the measurements are exactly alike.—G. A. Luers in Popular Science Monthly.

COOLING SYSTEM MOST IMPORTANT

Many Motorists Experience Considerable Trouble From Their Engines Overheating.

MEANS TO PREVENT TROUBLE

Most Essential That There Be Free Circulation of Water, Freedom From Scale and Strong Current of Cooled Air.

Every automobile owner or driver knows from experience that a gas engine becomes hot after running for some time. This is due to the explosions or rapid burning of the gas inside the cylinders.

A large percentage of the heat developed in the cylinder goes to heat up the cylinder walls and if these cannot be cooled either by strong blasts of air or water circulation around them, they will become so hot that they will crack and break apart or at least become warped out of shape and become useless. By far the greater number of cars use what is known as the water cooling system.

How Water Is Cooled.

The water flows around the cylinder walls and then through piping and rubber hose connections into the radiator where it is spread out in thin sheets or small pipes which have an immense amount of surface exposed to the air. In this manner the water is cooled and then flows back to the engine in order to keep it, also, cooled to the proper temperature.

If any part of the cooling system fails to function properly, the cylinders are not cooled and we say that the engine overheats. Water, as we know, cannot be heated above 212 degrees F. without being placed under pressure. Therefore, the water which flows around the cylinder walls cannot be heated above this temperature. If the water is not kept slightly below this temperature, it will rapidly evaporate by boiling. If the engine is run without water in the water jacket the cylinder walls will be heated above their normal temperature, with the result that the oil will be entirely burned off the cylinder wall surface and the piston will begin to cut small slots lengthwise on the wall with the result that often the engine will, in a few minutes' time, be seriously damaged.

Necessary Conditions.

In order that the cooling system work properly, we must have the following conditions:

Plenty of water, free circulation of water throughout the entire system, freedom from scale in the radiator and a strong current of air passing continuously through the radiator to cool the water.

It follows, that if the engine overheats, some of the previous conditions are not being fulfilled. Usually we look at the fan first, as this is where the trouble most frequently occurs. See that the fan bearings are free and that the belt is tight enough to drive the fan with very little slipping, also have the fan blades tipped at the proper angle to draw the air through the radiator.

While the fan belt must be tight enough to turn the fan, care must be taken not to tighten the belt so that it will be broken in a few minutes of running. Next see that there is plenty of water in the radiator; feel of the rubber hose connections to see whether they feel flabby. If they are soft, it is very likely that the inner walls of the hose have softened and perhaps entirely filled the opening so that the water cannot flow through.

Reconsidered.

Philippi—You know, I fell in love with Jack Huggins at first sight.

Perdita—When is your engagement to be announced?

Philippi—Never. I took a second look.

USED "DOG-OIL" AS MEDICINE

Fearful and Wonderful Combination Recommended for the Treatment of Gunshot Wounds.

The great surgeon, Ambrose Pare, wrote the following about the year 1540:

"When I was at Turin I found a surgeon famed above all the rest for his treatment of gunshot wounds, into whose favor I found a way to insinuate myself, that I might have the recipe of his balm as he called it, wherewith he dressed these wounds. And he made me pay my court to him for two years, before I could possibly get the recipe out of him. In the end, thanks to my gifts and presents, he gave it to me, which was this, to boil down, in oil of lilies, young whelps just born, and earthworms prepared with Venice turpentine. Then was I joyful and my heart made glad, that I had learned his remedy."

And the London Pharmacopoeia for the year 1650 contained a recipe for "dog oil," with the following ingredients: "Sallet oyl, two puggy dogs newly whelped, earthworms washed in white wine and cypress turpentine and spirit of wine."—Exchange.

New England's "Hobblebush."

One of the oddest-mannered trees to be found in the New England countryside is the wayfaring tree, or hobblebush. The name is especially applicable, for the tree spreads out a branch till it touches the ground, then takes root right from the branch. The blossoms of the hobblebush are most effective, scores of flower wheels growing in plats, giving stunning masses of ivory white to the spring landscape, almost as soon as the snow has melted. The leaves themselves are brilliant green, and are very large. In autumn they turn a gorgeous garnet red, while where the lovely spring blossoms were appear clusters of apple-shaped berries blackish crimson in hue. So you see the hobblebush, despite its queer name and strange habits, is really very beautiful almost the whole year round.—Christian Science Monitor.

Proceedings Against Beetles.

The "Memoires de la Societe Royal Academique de Savole" give a curious account of proceedings taken against beetles in 1445 and 1487. They had committed great ravages in the St. Julian vineyards. Having listened to counsel on either side, the judge suggested that the vinegrowers should cede to the defendants land where they could live without trespassing on the vineyards; otherwise he ordered that the vineyards should be respected by the beetles under certain penalties. The beetles' lawyer protested that the land was barren, and the court appointed assessors to survey it. They reported favorably, but the beetles raised a legal quibble and so it went on, but what the upshot was is not known owing to the destruction of the document.

Unwitting Criticism.

There are some well-intentioned persons who walk about the streets of a certain town with poles, displaying large paper placards, on which are printed texts and religious exhortations.

The other afternoon one of them took for his pitch a place just in front of a potato chip stall. On his placard ran the affrighting query:

"After life, judgment. After judgment—what?"

Exactly beneath and in a line with it ran the potato stall announcement: "We fry in the best beef dripping."—London Answers.

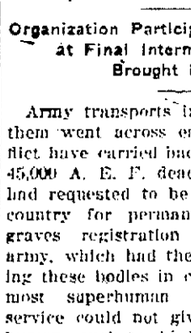
DADDY OF AMERICAN LEGION

E. Lester Jones of Washington, D. C., Founder of the Movement Back in 1919.



E. Lester Jones of Washington, D. C., because he was the founder of the American Legion movement in America, was called the "daddy" of the organization back in 1919 and the title has stayed with him ever since.

Mr. Jones was one of a handful of veterans who met in Washington, March 7, 1919, and formed what was known as the John J. Pershing post of World War Veterans. Later, when the several societies of those who had fought in the World war combined under the name of the American Legion, Mr. Jones was made commander of the newly-formed George Washington post No. 1. When the department of the District of Columbia was formed, he was made departmental commander.

Legionnaire Jones was an enlisted man with the District of Columbia National Guard prior to the World war. During the war he rose from private to colonel, taking all the grades.

LEGION HONORED ALL DEAD

Organization Participated in Services at Final Interment of Men Brought Home.

Army transports in which many of them went across eager for the conflict have carried back the last of the 45,000 A. E. F. dead, those relatives had requested to be returned to this country for permanent burial. The graves registration service of the army, which had the work of returning these bodies in charge, did an almost superhuman task. But this service could not give the comradely human touch to the handling of these bodies after they reached the United States that seemed due them.

No organization was so well suited to perform the last rights of honor and respect for these soldier dead as was the American Legion. The men of the Legion took upon themselves the obligation. Forty ship loads of bodies came to eastern ports during a period of two and a half years. It was not always possible to have an elaborate service, because the arrivals were too frequent, but in every instance there was at least a prayer by a chaplain of the Protestant, Catholic or Jewish faith, an address by a prominent citizen or army officer and a rifle salute.

A number of times, however, the services were noteworthy. President Harding delivered an address at services arranged by the Legion, May 23, 1921, when the Princess Matoika arrived with 451 bodies. General Pershing and Senator Lodge spoke when the Somme and the Wheaton arrived, July 10, 1921, with 7,000 dead. The last cargo of bodies arrived in Brooklyn, in April, 1922, on the Cambrai. On that occasion, the body of Private Charles W. Graves, Company M, One-hundred and Seventeenth infantry, Thirteenth division, was borne on a caisson through the streets, lined with silent throngs, to the army base, where simple ceremonies marked the close of the last public demonstration for America's returned dead.

RAN TOWARD BERLIN IN 1918

Clarence De Mar, Winner of 25-Mile American Marathon Race, Interested in Boy Scouts.

Clarence H. DeMar of Melrose, Mass., winner of the 25-mile American Marathon race, got some of his endurance as a long-distance runner while running toward Berlin in 1918, and he undoubtedly acquired a good deal of his agility and sureness of foot while dodging Fritz's missiles. De Mar finished fourth in a long-distance race between the men of the A. E. F. and the other allied nations in the Pershing stadium in Paris.

His chief interest, however, does not seem to be in racing, but in the welfare of a troop of boy scouts of which he has been in charge for several years.

Ten Years to Displace the Blue.

It will require about ten years to clothe all French troops in khaki despite the efforts of the higher council of war to equip all branches of the French army in uniforms of that color. The horizon blue and steel gray cloth on hand must be used up and it will take ten years to do it, the ministry of war declares.

Iron Sands Put to Good Use.

Cast iron of excellent quality is now being made from the iron sands that abound on the shores of New Zealand. On over 100 miles of coast there are millions of tons of this iron sand, but it is only during the last few years that it has been utilized.

KNOWS MEN BY NICKNAMES

Legion's National Adjutant Has Acquaintanceship Among Members of the 11,000 Posts.

There is one magnificent difference, among others, between the American Legion of today and that Legion of C. Julius Caesar's day. No one in the latter outfit knew more than a cohort or two of private soldiers and ordinary officers by their first names. The American Legion has a man who knows thousands of his Legionnaires by their favorite nicknames. But Caesar's hosts didn't have any national adjutants to speak of.

Legion posts are established in practically every community in the United States and Legionnaires have carried their flag into 20 foreign countries. In every one of these far-flung 11,000 posts there are one or more men who know Lemuel Bolles. Mr. Bolles, then, knows them. Ever since the Legion was organized in France Mr. Bolles has been identified with it. Since its first convention in Minneapolis in 1919 he has been national adjutant, and as such he has met personally or corresponded with thousands of Legion men and women. His duties have taken him into almost all the 48 states during these three years, and he receives a thousand or so letters each week. He has, without doubt, the largest personal acquaintance with men of arms ever enjoyed by any individual since armies were invented.

Mr. Bolles was born in Minneapolis, grew up on the ranges of the Dakotas and was established in Seattle, Wash., when he entered active service for the World war. He began his military career as a private in a National Guard company. Overseas he served as a colonel or general staff of the First army corps, and was decorated with the Legion of Honor of France.

PLAQUE TO AMERICAN LEGION

Bronze Souvenir Is Presented to Organization by Le Journal, the Paris Newspaper.

A beautiful bronze souvenir, presented by Le Journal of Paris, the newspaper which carried the first news of the Yanks' activities along the front four and five years ago, to the American Legion, composed of those same Yanks, has just been installed in the new trophy room at Legion headquarters.

The plaque is made from the bronze that was used in the manufacture of the famous French seventy-fives which helped saved Paris during the war. The inscription on the shield says, "To the American Legion: In remembrance of its dead and appreciation for its members. With memories and with hope!"

Carrying On With the American Legion

"Main street" has been lifted out of the mud by the American Legion post of Bristow, Neb. The post assembled 80 men and 30 teams and graveled the well-known thoroughfare in two days.

It is the aim of the Legion to carry the news to all ex-soldiers that they can still reinstate their war-risk insurance policies with all war-time advantages. This can be done up to March 3, 1926.

American Legion men of Hibbing, Minn., have endowed a bed in their local hospital and in the Legion hospital at Rochester to provide emergency treatment for their sick and wounded comrades.

Payment of old debts takes the lead in the spending of the state compensation allowance received by the ex-soldiers of Ohio, according to a poll taken by the American Legion. Savings deposits make the second largest item.

Why "Brother Jonathan."

The popular British nickname for the United States "Brother Jonathan," owed its origin to Washington's secretary and aide de camp, Col. Jonathan Trumbull. Washington used to say, "We must refer the matter to Brother Jonathan."

FIND PLEASURE IN PAINTING

Almost Every One Has at Some Time of Life Been Fond of Handling Bright Colors.

Nearly everybody likes to paint. We like to feel the paint flow from the brush and to see the dull, dirty surface we are painting covered with a smooth, brightly colored coating, which not only lends beauty to it, but protects it as well against the destructive influences of the weather and the corrosive gases in the air. It may be that the almost universal pleasure found in painting is an inherent trait, communicated to us through the centuries by our savage forefathers, who mixed pigment with fat or grease and smeared their bodies and faces with it. Paint is no modern invention; even white lead is of ancient origin, declares a New York Sun writer. The story is told of the wife of the famous Greek general, Xenophon, who had the habit of smearing white lead on her face and wearing high heels until her husband told her he thought her pretty enough as she was without the application of artificial aids to beauty.

There is a reference traced back as far as the Seventh century A. D., which is the first recorded instance of the use of paint to cover a wooden carriage, very much in the manner prevalent today. There are earlier historical mentions of the use of paint, but these refer more to sizes, such as glue, and special paints such as those made with wax and used by the Romans in admixture with glue to paint their ships of war. The Egyptians used glue sizes and varnishes. The mummy cases in museums indicate that clearly and probably form the earliest examples of varnished articles in existence.

NEWSPAPERS MEND MUDHOLE

Good Traction Is Afforded Wheels and Assists Greatly When Car Becomes Mired.

It is not an unusual thing to become stuck in a mudhole. Carry a few old newspapers in one of the pockets or under the seats. They afford good traction for the wheels and will assist greatly when pulling out of the mud. Never speed up the engine and "jump" the clutch. This will only cause the wheels to spin and dig deeper in the mud.

This photograph might be of six successful business men in any well-regulated city. But in reality it is of six men who are doomed to die for murder. The men were plotting to rob a bank at Anita, La., and were overheard by Dallas Calmes, a New Orleans restaurant keeper, who gave the alarm. One shot was fired, and Calmes fell dead. The men were arrested and convicted. From left to right they are Joseph Rini of Chicago; Andrea Larantia of Chicago; Joseph Giglio of Brooklyn; Roy Leons of Brooklyn, and Joseph Bacchio and Natali Deamore of New Orleans.

This remarkable photograph, taken within a few minutes after the crash, shows firemen, policemen and citizens removing the dead and wounded from the wreckage of two passenger trains which collided at Pleasant Ridge, near Cincinnati, O., killing five passengers and injuring many others. THE OFFICE CAT

The Busy Bee.

Once upon a time a country hotel keeper inserted an ad in the paper for a helper. In a country hotel one has to do many sorts of things. The establishment is such that the proprietor cannot afford a staff of specialists.

But to get on with our story. One of the applicants for the job was an Irishman.

"What I want," explained the hotel keeper, "is an all around useful man. One who can cook and wash dishes, keep the books, do his bit behind the desk, handle the correspondence, answer bells and drive the automobile down to the depot at train time to pick up the guests. We have a cow, too. Do you know how to milk?"

"Yes," said the Irishman, "but excuse me for asking what sort of soil have you here?"

"Soil?" snapped the hotel keeper.

"Well, I thought if it was clay I might make bricks in my spare time."

If automobiles could talk, lots of scandal would be floating around.

A pessimist closed an eye, wrinkles his face, draws up the corners of his mouth and says, "It can't be done." An optimist has a face full of sunshine. He beams and says, "It can be done," and let's George do it. A peptomist takes off his hat, rolls up his sleeves and does it.

Pretty girls are now employed to take up the collections in a New Jersey church and the plates are not big enough to hold all the cash piled on them. This is at least one argument why sour-faced old duffers should be discarded for this important phase of church work—not only in New Jersey, but elsewhere.

If we could stop a grouch as easy as we can stop a laugh, wouldn't it help a lot?

LIGHTNING RODS NO LONGER A JOKE

The old lightning rod joke is out of date, for properly installed rods have been proved a great protection from electrical storms. But if they are not correctly installed, according to the rural engineers of the state college at Ithaca, they are worse than useless. The college gives some rules which should govern lightning rod installation.

Rods should not be insulated from buildings by glass or porcelain, but should be attached directly with clamps or special fasteners. Durability is the most important factor in the choice of materials, and the choice lies between iron, aluminum, and copper, with copper as the most satisfactory in this respect. Braided cable is of more value than the same weight of metal in a solid rod. There must be no sharp bends or sudden turns in the conductors, which must be grounded under several feet of soil in water, or in earth that is always moist. Broken or dislodged conductors are a source of danger.

It will also dash out from its den and attack the passer-by.

Senate House Treasures Missed After Visit of Apparently Wealthy and Respectable Automobile Tourists.

Incredible as it seems to the right minded citizen, there are people in this world who steal when opportunity offers. The trustees of the Senate House Association through a long series of years have accumulated what probably is the only, and admittedly is the most interesting collection of XVIIth and XVIIIth century household articles in existence. The majority of them cannot be re-placed, and all are jealously guarded by the trustees and Miss Westbrook, the custodian of the Senate House. The trustees repeatedly have been requested to loan them for exhibitions in New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago, St. Louis, and elsewhere, and invariably declined to do so because of the risk involved in their transportation.

Not the least curious among them was a vegetable slicer consisting of two slicer boards and a hand made, spiral double revolving knife made by Elias Davis, a celebrated sharp edged tool maker of Ulster county prior to and during the war of the revolution. He was the leader of the Ulster county contingent that put a rope around the neck of the lead statue of George III which stood in Bowling Green; pulled it down and melted it up for bullets for the Continental army, and when told by a New York Royalist that he would hang for it, replied, "Well, we will hang the old King first."

One day this week a party of men and women having every appearance of opulent respectability, visited the Senate House and manifested a deep interest in this collection of old household effects, especially the vegetable slicer and a small narrow double pointed smoothing iron used by belles of the XVIIth and XVIIIth centuries for ironing laces. They left in a high powered automobile and ten minutes after they had gone Miss Westbrook missed the vegetable slicer and the smoothing iron. The loss was at once reported to the trustees. The vegetable slicer was a unique instrument, and frequently it has been suggested it should be patented. Judge Clearwater, the president of the association, is of the opinion that the thief had this view, and probably may attempt to patent the appliance.

Elias Davis, the maker, was a noted man in Ulster county during the revolution and afterwards. He made fine axes, hatchets, augers and knives for the jack planes used by old time carpenters, together with andirons, tongs, fire-place shovels and tangles. He was a good soldier, an elder in the Dutch Reformed Church, and a good citizen.

ASQUITH WARNS BRITISH THEY MUST PAY WAR DEBT

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, Aug. 5.—Former Premier H. H. Asquith, in a speech at Oxford today warned British taxpayers that they cannot expect the United States to cancel the debt owed to them by Great Britain. The debt, with interest, amounts to about $4,300,000,000.

Mr. Asquith attacked what he called the plan of Premier Lloyd George to offset the debts owed to Great Britain against the British debt to the United States.

"To try to lull the English taxpayer into the illusion that we can offset these imaginary assets against our solid obligations to the United States, which we are in honor bound to meet and are willing to discharge, is a clumsy piece of political legerdemain," said the former premier.

"The best friends the British taxpayer has are those who view the facts and warn against allowing an European settlement being delayed and entangled with possible bitterness and estrangement between Britain and the United States."

BELGIUM NOT IN ACCORD WITH FRENCH INDEMNITY STAND

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Brussels, Aug. 5.—Belgium and France have broken their close union on European issues, according to indications today. The break is said to have taken place upon the question of German indemnity.

It is understood that the Belgian delegates in the Allied conference in London next week will protest against France's independent action in sending new demands to Germany as "prejudicial to the collection of reparations."

France, through Premier Poincare, sent these demands to Germany a week ago threatening further "sanctions" (penalties) to be effective tonight unless Germany consented.

DELICIOUS FOOD AT THE BIG PICNIC

Everybody planning to attend the Farm and Home Bureau-Chamber of Commerce picnic at Forsyth Park August 16 can feel perfectly safe in leaving home without packing lunches. As other years, all the Home Bureau communities are responding splendidly and there is no doubt but there will be plenty to eat for everybody. The following are some of the good things that you will be able to get:

Hot dogs, cooked by the expert hot dog fryer, M. H. Davis, with plenty of mustard and good fresh rolls.

Heaps of all kinds of home made sandwiches made by the Home Bureau members of Kingston, Ellenville and New Paltz. There will also be delicious coffee to go with the sandwiches and hot dogs made by the Home Bureau members of High Falls and Stone Ridge.

There will be plenty of ice cold milk drink made from good Dairymen's League Milk. The Dairymen's League will also furnish the ice cream and everybody who has ever tasted the Dairymen's League ice cream would be willing to come to the picnic for that only. Different Home Bureau communities are contributing hame made cakes to go with the ice cream.

In order to make a balanced meal there will have to be some fruit, so the Home Bureau members of Modena, Clintondale and Milton are going to furnish the fruit and take care of its selling.

New York, Aug. 5.—Special guards have been placed at many subway stations here to watch for persons putting German five-pfennig pieces in the fare slots in place of nickels.

Peddlers operating outside subway stations in Manhattan, the Bronx and Brooklyn drove a thriving traffic in five-pfennig pieces, offering them at 500 for $1, with a whispered tip that the coins would work subway gates "just the same as a nickel." This statement was found to be true.

Passengers entering the subway kiosk at Seventy-second street and Broadway were accosted by the peddlers. One woman solicited to buy pfennigs at 500 for $1 complained to a patrolman on duty nearby, but when accompanied to the station was unable to identify persons said to have accosted her. It was later learned that similar offers of pfennigs for use in subway gates had been made at numerous stations in three boroughs.

The pfennig is normally worth to the mark, which is now quoted at 600 to the dollar. Owing to depreciation of German currency it is said to be now possible to acquire a sackful of five-pfennig pieces for a dollar in Hamburg and other German ports. Information was obtained that a heavy influx of small German coins has been taking place since direct sailings between American and German ports were resumed some months ago.

The five-pfennig piece, so closely resembling a nickel, is said to have been imported by sailors employed on these vessels. Efforts to learn the extent of losses suffered through coin substitution by transportation companies in slot gates and coin receptacles such as are used on the Interborough and B. R. T. systems proved unavailing. It was admitted that considerable substitution is taking place daily, but no definite statement as to losses entailed could be had.

Drifts of Sand.

Wherever dry, loose sand occurs, it is being constantly shifted by the wind. It often buries cultivated lands, buildings and forests. On the shores of Lake Michigan, there are drifts 100 feet deep. Those in Cornwall reach 300 feet in depth, and the drifts of the Gobi desert are 40 miles long and 900 feet high in some places. On the shores of the Bay of Biscay, the drifting sand travels inland 10 feet a year; in parts of Denmark, 24 feet, and in Southern India, 17 yards.

SURVEYS SAWKILL FOR WATER BOARD

The board of water commissioners have a civil engineer at work surveying the Sawkill creek, and preparing maps and plans as a preliminary step for the proposed condemnation proceedings to be taken to acquire lands abutting on the creek where it flows through Woodstock. This is to be done to stop bathing and polluting the waters of the creek which supplies Kingston with its drinking water.

The young Princess Beatrice, only 13, second daughter of the King and Queen of Spain, is now reported engaged to Crown Prince Umberto of Italy, himself only 17. The announcement of the betrothal comes from a seemingly trustworthy source in Madrid.

Pride and Vanity.

I would much rather fight pride than vanity, because pride has a stand-up way of fighting. You know where it is. It throws its black shadow on you, and you are not at a loss where to strike. But vanity is that delusive, that insectivorous, that multiplied feeling; and men that fight vanity are like men that fight widges and butterflies. It is easier to chase them than to hit them.—Henry Ward Beecher.

Shark Enjoyed "Scratching."

A diver, working off the Australian coast, had an odd adventure. A 12-foot shark came nosing up to him, and as its rough hide might have damaged his suit, he held the point of his steel "jumper" toward the intruder. This seemed to be just what the shark wanted, and he rubbed himself against it as a pig does against a stick when he is being scratched. He kept the diver at work for half an hour, and at last made off.

INFANTRY STILL KING OF BATTLE

Men Cannot Be Replaced by Instruments, Say Experts.

USE OF AIRPLANE IS UPHELD

But It Cannot Replace Cavalry in All Forms of Reconnoissance, Military Men Assert—War Department Sends Questionnaires to Chiefs of Combat Branches Devised to Bring Out the Best Military Thought Regarding Progress in Military Tactics.

The War department has under way an exhaustive study of the influence that modern scientific developments will have upon the technique of warfare, especially with regard to aviation, motor transportation and tanks. The Army Recruiting News in a recent issue states that while the fundamental principles of war, such as the necessity for co-operation and the advantage of surprise, will always remain unchanged, their proper application, which constitutes the true measure of military art, varies constantly with many factors, not least of which is the advent of new armament.

In order to obtain a basis for arriving at such uniform doctrine and understanding, the War department has sent to the chiefs of combat branches and to certain others a questionnaire devised to bring out the best military thought regarding both basic questions and questions related to the specific changes brought about by the advent of new developments, as aviation, tanks and motor transportation.

"It was known," says the News, "that the latter class of questions would bring out many divergent views, and such was the case.

Conclusions Reached.

"It is possible at this time to announce the conclusions of the War department to the basic questions, as to which there was substantially unanimous agreement, it is concluded, and doctrines of tactics and of training will be based accordingly:

"1. That man remains the fundamental instrument in battle, and as such cannot be replaced by any imaginable instrument, short of one more perfect than the human body, including the mind.

"2. That man in the bulk—meaning the greater portion of armed forces—fights with greatest freedom of action and with greatest efficiency when on foot, not on horseback, in a tank, in an airplane, in a fixed fortification, etc.; that to achieve decisive action he is best armed with the rifle and bayonet; that man is rendered least vulnerable when merely clothed against the weather and armored by his own agility, with steel helmet.

"3. That battle is normally determined by physical encounter with the bayonet, or the fear thereof; all other agencies of destruction, as artillery, machine guns and aircraft, are auxiliary in their effect, however potent, and serve to make possible the advance of the foot soldier to hand-to-hand encounter.

"4. That infantry is the basic combatant arm upon whose success normally depends the success of the army; the primary duty of other arms, when associated with infantry, is to assist the infantry to achieve its mission by protecting and aiding it in every way, and by destroying enemy resistance to its efforts.

"5. That no arm except infantry can be expected under normal conditions to destroy an approximately equal force of enemy infantry armed with rifle and bayonet.

"6. That, while infantry is normally the basic arm in war, under certain conditions or during certain phases cavalry may replace it as the basic arm, for example in operation against mounted forces, or against foot troops whose efficiency is below normal for any reason.

Cannot Replace Soldier.

"Due to the great publicity that has been given to the possible effect of new instruments of warfare, coupled with the natural centering of public interest on means of destruction which are both new and spectacular, misconceptions are likely to arise in the mind of the public as to the powers and limitations of various weapons and the arms developing and serving them. The War department, by making public in summary form the best military thought upon such subjects, hopes to insure that the heresy shall never become implanted in the country that any material means can ever replace in war the individual soldier who is willing and able to fight.

"With regard to the more debatable questions covered in the second part of the questionnaire, it will be of interest to note at this time that on certain questions wherein the public seems to be in doubt there is absolute agreement among military minds. For example, there is agreement that the increasing use of airplanes carrying bombs does not tend to obviate the necessity for the use of mobile field artillery on the battlefields.

"Similarly, it is agreed that aviation supplements but can never entirely replace cavalry in all forms of reconnoissance, and use of aircraft for the purpose being in general devoted to greater distances than it would be possible for the cavalry to reach, and its efficiency for reconnoissance being also affected by bad weather conditions."

GOVERNMENT ACTS AS MATRIMONIAL AGENCY

Cream of British Womanhood Is Flocking to Canada for Jobs and Husbands.

The cream of young British womanhood is flocking to a vast Gretna Green on the fertile plains of Canada. In the last two years up to April 1, 1922, 62,408 women have come from the British Isles to Canada, the vast majority of those being listed as "unaccompanied women," and the reduction of Britain's million surplus women has just begun.

Within a year after their arrival it is estimated 40 per cent of these girls are married. Out of 700 letters received by the women's division of the Department of Immigration at Ottawa from recent girl arrivals in Canada who had taken positions 40 letters announced the marriage of the writers.

The Canadian government is the Cupid in this romance. The Dominion Department of Immigration naturally is one of the most important branches of the executive department. Throughout England, Scotland and Wales there is an organized propaganda by lecturers who travel constantly through the counties.

The lecturers agree to place the girls in jobs in Canada. Owing to the industrial depression in Canada now, all positions offered are in domestic service. The provinces are ready to agree to pay the passage and necessary expenses of the girls from their homes in the United Kingdom to their location in Canada, the money to be repaid on easy terms from the wage received by the young women in their new locations.

The girl applicants are notified when to leave home and on what ship. A Canadian official then takes the girl from her home to the port of embarkation. An official conductress accompanies the girls on the ship, living with them throughout the journey.

"BOY PLUNGER" LOSES EIGHT MILLIONS IN WALL STREET

Jesse Livermore, known as the "boy plunger" in Wall street, who is said to have lost more than $8,000,000 in the greatest financial coup in years. Livermore is said to have been one of the men interested in securing control of the Mexican petroleum (Mex Pete) stock, which made a sensational rise of almost a hundred points within less than six months.

TOT PLAYS WITH ROBBER

Gave Up Game Reluctantly When Band Fled With Loot.

With her father and his clerk bound and gagged near by, three-year-old Sarah Auster laughed merrily as one bandit played with her while the others rifled her daddy's jewelry store in New York. She gave up the game reluctantly when the quartet fled with several thousand dollars' worth of loot.

Gabriel Auster, his clerk and his daughter were in the store when a well-dressed young man entered. While the proprietor was showing him a watch three other "customers" entered. One displayed a gun and covered the jeweler and his assistant.

The little girl watched with interest while the bandits bound and gagged the pair. Then, twirling his watch, one robber said:

"You come and play with me, kiddie."

Father Hurls Stone at Kidnaper.

Struck in the back by a stone thrown by the father of a girl he was attempting to kidnap, an unknown man dropped the girl and fled in an automobile. Beulah Denny, the fourteen-year-old daughter of William Denny of Parsons, Kan., was the girl who was saved by her father's accurate aim.

They also must earn fines of $250 during the next 18 months, the court decreed.

Rice-Throwing East Indian Custom.

The rice custom came to us from India, and is very old. Rice is the "staff of life" in that and in many other countries, and to throw rice over a newly wedded couple was one way of telling them that the thrower wished them prosperity.

BOY SCOUTS

(Conducted by National Council of the Boy Scouts of America.)

BIRDS RECOGNIZE UNIFORM

Scoutmaster John S. Mallette of Troop 1 of Ravenna, O., tells of a successful game sanctuary to which his troop volunteers their services as a troop good turn, as follows:

"Stafford game sanctuary is the property of the Cleveland Worsted Mills company. In the development of a water supply for their mills located in Ravenna it was necessary to acquire about 1,000 acres of land and about six miles of right of way. As engineer of this development I constructed six miles of canal diverting the waters of a creek and conveying same to two small lakes, which we connected by canals. By means of a dam we raised the level of these lakes about 20 feet making over 200 acres of water surface. The lakes are about five miles from Ravenna.

"Naturally my boys spend a great amount of time there. Patrol hikes every Saturday throughout the year and overnight hikes on holidays and during the summer camp. Two years ago we leased it all to the state of Ohio as a game sanctuary, and the task of looking after the refuge fell to our troop. The state planted about 250 ring-necked pheasants in this refuge. The troop built approved shelters and feeding huts. During the winter these huts are visited every Saturday and a supply of grain, raisins, etc., is placed in them by the boys. Feeding stations were also maintained for the quail, of which we have about six coveys. Last year we purchased three pairs of mallard ducks and raised about thirty youngsters. This year the state sent the troop six more drakes. We are putting in a pair of English gall ducks this summer and expect that during the fall flight we will have 1,000 wild ducks to feed instead of the 400 or 500 we had last year. On account of the feed and protection we had over 100 birds stay until the lakes were completely frozen over. We have planted wild rice this year and expect to cut down our hand-feeding.

"The boy scout uniform is the only one the birds recognize.

"Of course the song birds have been taken care of, rather incidentally, it is true, but they have increased in number and variety. A pair of cranes make these lakes their summer home. We secure our proportion of fish from the state hatcheries and we further supplement this by protection during the black bass spawning season."

STUDYING THE WAYS OF BIRDS

Bird study on hikes keeps a scout "mentally awake" and suggests new ways of aiding his feathered friends.

SCOUT EMPLOYMENT BUREAU

A boy scout summer employment bureau has been put into operation in Shelbyville, Ind. The plan has already been in successful operation for several summers, receiving hearty support from business men. Plans are also being made to conduct "community service," every scout to devote a specified number of hours during the summer to the service of the city.

This was a meeting at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel, New York city, of the heads of the principal nationally federated organizations.

MADE TOP FLOOR DO WORK

Ingenious but Forgetful Young Man Drafted Door Opener Into Service and Escaped Reprimand.

Having on the third successive day forgotten to take the front-door key with him a young man living in one of the rooms of a first-floor apartment, stood in the outer vestibule wondering how he could get in without letting his landlady know of his latest negligence.

Unlocking the front door was a simple matter for anyone in the apartment, since all one had to do was press a button, but unfortunately, the button was at the front of the apartment and usually when the young roomer arrived, which was about supper time, his landlady was engaged in the kitchen at the other end of her domicile. Suddenly an idea came to him. Glancing over the rows of mail boxes on the wall at his side, he chose a button above one of them belonging to a top-floor apartment.

He pressed the button and waited—no response. Then he pressed another button and a moment later heard the click of the electric lock release. Stepping inside he was soon at the door of his apartment, which he opened with his other key, while the person who unlocked the downstairs front door wondered why the supposed visitor did not appear, says the New York Sun.

Oldtime Football.

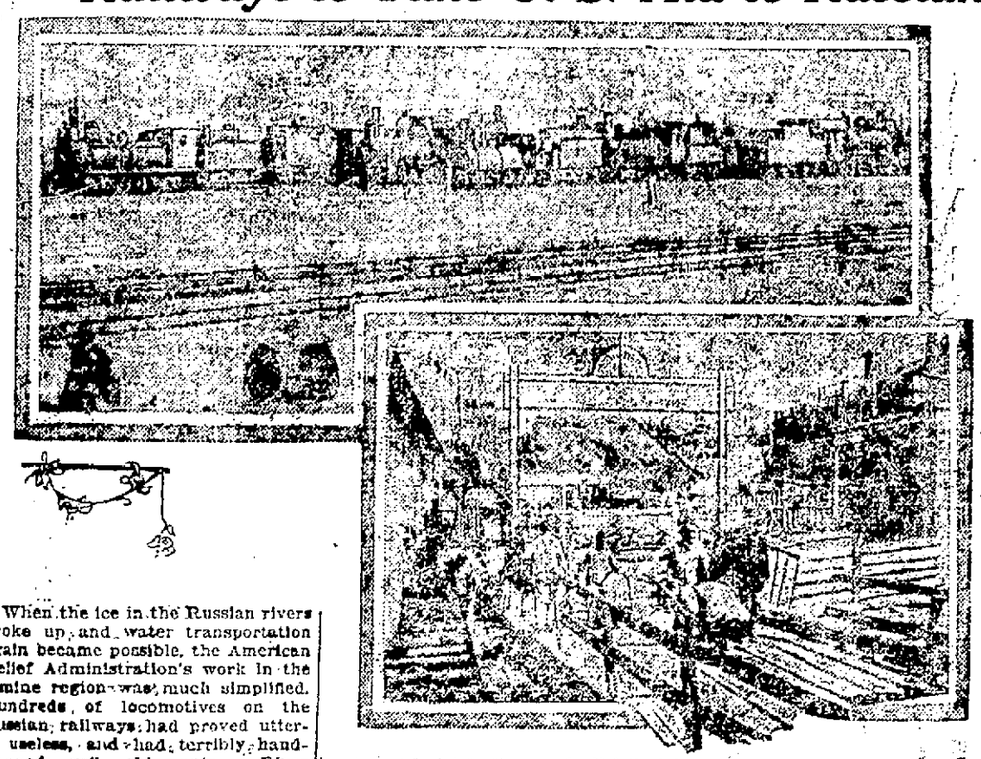
Football may be a rough game, but it is quite gentle and harmless now compared to what it used to be. Way back in the Eighteenth century when the sport was in its swaddling clothes, the type of ball used was not so kind to the feet of the one who kicked it. Eighteenth-century footballs were made of straw which was braided until a long rope was obtained. This was then wound and coiled into the shape desired. The finishing touch was to knock it around in water until it became hard and unyielding.

When the leather ball finally replaced the old straw model, it was stuffed with horse hair until it became hard and solid. The leather ball was at first scoffed at by the oldtimers who had played the game when straw balls were in vogue. Even when stuffed with hair, the leather ball was regarded as a toy for weaklings who were afraid of injuring their feet. The parents of that age had more cause to complain about the roughness of the game than have those of today, whose sons kick inflated pigskin instead of solid balls of straw.

Americans Eat Much Candy.

The people of the United States are the greatest candy eaters in the world. Indeed, it is said of them that they eat more candy than all the rest of the world combined.

Use River Boats in Place of Crippled Railways to Take U. S. Aid to Russians



When the ice in the Russian rivers broke up and water transportation again became possible, the American Relief Administration's work in the famine region was much simplified. Hundreds of locomotives on the Russian railways had proved utterly useless, and had terribly handicapped rail shipments. River steamers were rapidly pressed into A. R. A. service, not only to move corn, seed grain and foods for the child-feeding kitchens, but, in addition, to distribute medical supplies and hospital equipment turned over to the A. R. A. by the United States Government and the American Red Cross. Herbert Hoover, chairman of the American Relief Administration, states in a report to President Harding, that the Medical Division has been able to wage a campaign of inoculation to prevent epidemic diseases and to put into force other life-saving sanitary measures. The doctors of Russia have taken new heart and have made marked progress because of these supplies.

Mr. Hoover estimates that the resources, mobilized by the A. R. A. from all sources including the Soviet Government, at $59,498,000. The Soviet Government furnished all internal transportation, warehouses, distribution and equipment without cost. Administration and distribution expenses in America were not only met by a small margin deducted from the food remittance service, but an additional contribution for children's relief has been provided from this source, so that no deductions have been made from Congressional funds or donations through the A. R. A.

The upper view shows "sick" locomotives—a common sight at almost any large station, while the lower scene shows the loading of American grain at Tzaritzin on to river steamers. Latest reports show that the food from America has enabled the people to shake off the "hunger apathy" and to resume planting, some of the people pulling the plows themselves to break ground. While it is too early, Mr. Hoover states, to give accurate estimates on the crops, the seed shipments will result in three or four times the production of the famine region's last harvest. However, there is little promise of surplus.

Other problems, while over the poverty which Russia faces, will include the re-absorption of many thousands of waifs and destitute children, and the shifting population.

While some 8,550,000 children and adults are being fed by the American Relief Administration, Mr. Hoover says, the actual saving of life is really much greater because of the fact that American aid supplemented the native supply. To feed this huge number 200 Americans are directing some 80,000 Russians and conducting 15,760 kitchens and distributing stations. And Mr. Hoover pays high tribute to the Americans engaged at personal sacrifice, hardship and danger, whose work "has stemmed one of the greatest catastrophies that has followed the war". The achievement would have been impossible, Mr. Hoover declares, without the aid of the Shipping Board, the Navy, the Army, and the cooperation of other American associations.

LARGEST FLAG HANGS IN POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Aug. 5.—One of the largest American flags in continuous use hangs in the court of the Post Office Department building here.

Suspended from the level of the eighth floor, the flag reaches down to the third and would make a rather hefty load for one to carry around, since it weighs ninety pounds.

The banner, according to accurate measurements, has a fly of 70 feet 4 inches, hoist 37 feet, field 20x28 feet. It is literally as big as a house, according to department officials, who assert that a comfortable six-room bungalow could be built on the space the flag would cover.

KANSAS NEGROES CLAIM RECORDS FOR OLD AGE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Leavenworth, Kas., Aug. 5.—Living in this city are two negroes, both of whom contend they are the oldest of their sex and race in the state. Henry Harris, now past his 117th birthday, voiced his claims on the part of the men, while Rena Chapman vehemently declared she wanted the public to know she was the women's representative for any age honors to be distributed in the state. She is 107 years old.

Harris also feels that he can qualify as a champion in other things. He boastfully told of being the father of twenty-eight children.

Moratorium Granted to Austria.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Paris, Aug. 5.—A partial indemnity moratorium was today granted to Austria by the reparations commission. The decree releases for twenty years the revenues on Austrian forests and salt mines and the state land customs. Under the Treaty of St Germain these revenues were to have been paid out in indemnity. The reparations commission explained that it took this action to assist the Austrian state bank to stabilize Austrian currency.

HAMMER HAS ONLY A LOOK-IN

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Michigan City, Ind., Aug. 5.—They make some pugilistic history here late this evening when Benny Leonard, lightweight champion, takes his title into the ring for a ten-round argument with Ever Hammer, Chicago's husky blonde, but it is next to impossible to figure that a change in the ownership is impending. On the class of the men alone Hammer has merely a look-in and nothing brighter than a fair fighting opportunity of turning the trick.

Hammer is going to give Benny a terrific battle and the champion will be considerably mussed up at the finish, that is true. But while the blonde boy is doing these things the champion, with two exceptionally good hands of his own, is going to do some mussing in his own behalf and Ever may be considerably smeared as a result.

There is every indication that the thing will continue to the limit of th tenth round, at which time Leonard undoubtedly will be balanced up as having a considerable shade the better of it.

It is a strange little mill, this one in which Leonard returns to Michigan City within a month and takes part in his second championship fight. It is one of those unfigurable things of the ring in which anything may happen and among them this: Leonard may knock Hammer out with a single punch. He might do it with the first solid right that he lands on Hammer's chin.

Through over-confidence and a bit of contempt for his sturdy opponent, the thing may drag along wearily, Ben being unable, because of the tremendous Hammer ability to soak up the punishment, to do anything of a really decisive nature.

Hammer may be able to get Leonard started on a backward trail in the early stage by opening up that cut over the champion's eye and raise merry old hob with the boy from New York. Ever may start right in by mixing so fiercely that the usual Leonard system of battling will be found totally inadequate to meet the situation and that, for once in his life the champion will be forced to drop all caution and mix in the general picnic grove style of milling, both men slamming away as best they can and "the do'll take the hindmost."

Leonard, it is very well known, likes to box with boxers. He is a great boxer himself and he likes the orthodox fellow who steps out with some degree of politeness and with regard to what the boxing book says.

We'll say this right here that once the summer air vibrates with the opening bell there isn't a thing polite or nice about Ever Hammer. His Scandinavian blood fairly boils and seethes with the task at hand. He is out for blood in a figurative way and it takes a champion to stop him in his wild quest.

Leonard's bum eye did not look so bad this morning as it did yesterday. The air of quiet confidence that has hung over the champion's camp was not a bit diminished.

There isn't a blemish on Hammer from scalplock to heels and an examination yesterday proved that the blonde boy is in absolutely perfect condition.

There will be three preliminary bouts, two of them for six and one for eight rounds. Mike Snyder and Abe Thompson will open the show at about 5 o'clock, Central Standard Time with a six round mix. Nick Eile and Charley Glazer will follow with six rounds and Harold Smith of Chicago and Irish Clayton of Pittsburgh will provide the eight round semi-final.

Indications are that it will be about 6:30 o'clock or later before the champion and his challenger will answer the bell.

OPEN AIR SERVICE SUNDAY EVENING AT 7:15

The Rev. A. S Cole, pastor of the Albany Avenue Baptist Church, will be the speaker at the open air service outside the Y. M. C. A. building Sunday evening. An exceptionally interesting devotional service is looked forward to as a special program of music has been arranged.

The time for the service has been changed from 7:30 o'clock to 7:15 o'clock. These meetings are bringing large crowds and Sunday evening a larger response is expected.

Fatally Burned.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New Haven, Ct., Aug. 5.—Fannie Massaro, 14, is dead and Louis De Martino, 27, Donimico de Martino, 4, and Frank Annuziato, 19, are on the danger list at the hospital as a result of burns in a fire at the home of Louis Massaro, at 54 Cherry Ann street last night which is being investigated by the fire marshal. Hamden firemen and a city fire company extinguished the blaze which was confined to the front room of the home.

Cressler Plans New Building.

C. E. Cressler is having an auto and motorcycle service station erected alongside his present location on Broadway, opposite the armory. Ground for the new building was broken this morning.

The DUNHAM HEATING SERVICE
MAKES RADIATORS HOT ALL OVER

THE Dunham Radiator Trap is one of the fundamentals of The Dunham Home Heating System. It is known the world over to heating engineers, as the device that revolutionized vacuum steam heating. The same reasons which made the engineers of the Woolworth Building, the imposing Field Museum of Chicago, and of nationally famous hotels, municipal buildings, industrial plants and homes, from Maine to California, prefer Dunham Heating Service, are the logical reasons which will appeal to you.

Sponges on English Coast.

It is not commonly known that several varieties of small sponges are found around English shores. They are mostly discovered between high and low water mark, though they bear little resemblance to the sponge of commerce. Growing sponges from "seed" is carried on aff the coast of Florida. The seed sponges are cut into small pieces and attached by wires to circular or triangular cement blocks, and then lowered to the ocean bottom. In about two years they reach a size suitable for commercial purposes, whereupon they are removed and new seed cuttings are attached. The period of growth for an ordinary bath sponge measuring about a foot in diameter is ten years. For this reason sponge beds are seldom worked incessantly. An exhausted bed may be made profitable to work after four years, during which time the sponges not worth gathering at the cessation have grown to a respectable size.

Working Up to a Climax.

Bad blood between Biggs and Jiggs in the mountain section of northeast Pennsylvania came space when Biggs put up a fence which blocked an old cowpath and Jiggs' cattle were called upon to detour. Jiggs tore the fence down. Biggs put it up again; then Jiggs demolished it once more. Biggs went to an attorney and asked what he could do. The lawyer said, "It is trespass. I can sue him for you. The cost will be about $10." Biggs produced a greasy wallet and $20 in currency and said: "I want you to law that sucker. I want him lawed a good $20 worth. As soon as you get the case started call him a blankety-blank"—this volley included about every banned epithet in the English language, any of which would have meant contempt proceedings by the court. "After that," continued Biggs, "begin to warm up gradual and leave Jiggs know that when I law a man I law him proper."

Salesman Won Promotion.

He didn't know anything about soap, but as his well-known concern had lately branched into this line, it was up to him to sell the soap quota alloted him. He had sold soup and beans successfully; he ate them and could, therefore, expatiate on their superior quality. But soap? That was a different kind of a nut to crack. The only thing he knew about soap was that he must think up some way to sell it. After much cogitation, he took two towels, dampened them, went to the back of his house in Minneapolis, and proceeded to clean the soot and dirt off the outside wall. He quickly got the towels looking more black than white. Then he personally took some of the new soap and washed one of the towels. He made a spotless job. Armed with these two towels he set out.—Forbes Magazine.

Changes Male to Female.

Changing a male animal into a female has been accomplished. Male newts, fresh water animals that resemble salamanders, have been placed on a starvation diet one spring, fed well the next, and then they have become females. This has been discovered by Christian Champy, French histologist. He starved male newts during the period of their greatest sexual activity. They acquired female characteristics, such as coloration and behavior. The following spring the newts were plentifully supplied with food, and it was found that their male internal organs had changed to a female-like structure which contained true egg cells. Nature makes this startling transformation, it is believed, because of her desire to provide greater chances of perpetuating the animal when times for it are hard.—Science Service.

Looking Ahead.

Wedmore—What's the idea of giving your fiancee a cigarette case? Does she smoke?

Gayboy—Oh, no, but she's just about due to break off and send my presents back, and I can use it myself.

The Scrap Book

COULD NOT REASON IT OUT

Philosopher Had Before Him the Evidence of His Senses, but Still He Pondered.

The proprietor of a tanyard was anxious to fix a suitable sign to his premises. Finally a happy thought struck him. He bored a hole through the door-post and stuck a calf's tail into it, with the tufted end outside.

After a while he saw a solemn-faced man standing near the door looking at the sign. The tanner stepped outside and addressed him.

"Good morning, sir," he said.

"Good morning," said the other, without taking his eyes off the sign.

"Do you want to buy any leather?" asked the tanner.

"No."

"Perhaps you've got some hides to sell?"

"No."

"What are you, then?"

"I am a philosopher. I've been standing here for an hour trying to find out how that calf got through that hole."

NOTHING DOING FOR SWAIN

Belgian Courts Afforded Little Satisfaction to Suitor Whose Courtship Had Been Expensive.

Matrimonial advertisements in Belgium have been put to a new use by a young woman in Brussels. She inserted the usual advertisement in the local press and shortly afterward received a reply from a wealthy sheep dealer. They met and the sheep dealer was somewhat impressed, but the lady proved unexpectedly coy. To impress her wandering fancy the more forcibly the eager swain bought her a snug little cafe at Saint Gilles, for which he paid 40,000 francs, and proudly presented the title deeds, we are told by the Montreal Family Herald. No sooner had she received them than she told her admirer that he did not take her fancy, after all. He brought an action against her, but the court has just nonsulted him, declaring that as they were not engaged the cafe was a free gift from one friend to another and there was no legal reason against it.

Soldier Never Got Note.

An Australian writes: "During the Gallipoli campaign, when a general appeal was made for sheepskin vests, my sister sent a postal note to pay for one and enclosed a letter to be placed in the pocket, asking the recipient, if he came across our only brother over there, to give him our love. The peninsula was evacuated before the shipment arrived, so it was sent on to France. In the winter of 1916-17, during a distribution of vests, one was passed to my brother. In a pocket of it he found his sister's note. We have it as a souvenir, though the grass now grows over our boy."

Woman Wins Arnold Prize.

This year's award of the Arnold essay prize is a notable incident in the history of the higher education of women, for it is the first instance of the winning of a university prize at Oxford by a woman candidate. The throwing open to women of the competition for such distinction has been one of the corollaries of their admission to degrees. The Arnold prize was founded in honor of Dr. Thomas Arnold of Rugby, and is awarded annually to junior graduates for the best essay on some subject of ancient or modern history.—Manchester Guardian.

CAUSE AND EFFECT.

"Say Sis, do you sing to your baby when he cries?"

"No, he cries when I sing to him."

Here's Real White Crow.

That there are exceptions to the saying, "black as a crow," was proved when one white crow and several black ones alighted on a fence near a Nova Scotia farmyard. The white crow, which was like the others in every respect except that its plumage was snow-white instead of black, was unfortunately shot by the farmer, and mounted by a taxidermist, who pronounced it a freak of nature.

Crow Takes Annual Vacation.

Taking a crow from its nest, a boy in New Brunswick trained the bird so that it would light on his shoulders. The crow is now four years old and has gone south every winter, except its first winter, when the boy kept it in the hen house. The bird seems to be very glad to get back home every spring and only three weeks ago returned from its journey as tame as ever.

Spirit Revelations.

"I do think," said Sir Thomas Browne, "that many mysteries ascribed to our own inventions have been the courteous revelations of spirits; for those noble essences in heaven bear a friendly regard unto their fellow natures on earth."

LADDY

We keep the baby's playthings in a chest,
His books and pencils, little shoes to dress,
His cap, his kite, the Barlow knife he had
To whittle ships with when the days were sad
With rushing rain and he could not go out
Upon the hills of morning with his shout.
And often when a great six-footer comes
To maul us over with his hairy fists,
We go and bring his trumpets and his drums—
And, oh! how shamefully he turns and twists!
All Laddies grow to hate them afterwhile,
To spurn the trinkets of their childhood day,
Because the pride of growth and power is theirs,
And they put on such airs!

But still we keep the trinkets put away,
For with them safely kept in Memory's chest
We can rebuild the happy hours again
Before our children grew to strapping man,
Great girls with fellows asking them to dance.
Our sons and daughters, not our little ones!
But, ah, how of the trail of revery runs
Back to the hidden trinkets, top and book,
And when we lift the cedar lid to look,
How like a vision from a magic box
Leap phantom figures, airy, light and free,
That Memory from her treasure-house unlocks
With re-created glee!

CANYONS GROOVED BY WATER

By Strange Freak, in the Operations, the Rainbow Bridge Was Formed and Left.

The land of southern Utah, where the great Rainbow natural bridge is found, consists of a flat tableland, deeply carved with canyons, remarks the Chicago Tribune. As the land rose here the streams all felt the urge to cut. The rubble on their bottoms was their tool. They ground and scoured grooves, and from grooves they cut canyons. At Rainbow bridge a brooklet found a crack down through a lower strata. With joy it gurgled in, carrying its tools. It splashed and swirled through the dark passages, and at every turn it hurled its cutters against the restraining walls. It ate itself a hole to flow in. No little cave sufficed. It cut a gallery. Then streams above sensed that the ground was hollowed out beneath them. Drops came seeping through the roof. They came singly, by trickles, and by torrents, dissolving and eroding as they ran.

The surface water broke the cave roof in. The story is almost told. Rainbow bridge, 309 feet high and 270 feet in span, is a remnant of the roof. Some freak of chance left it standing all alone. Its magnitude denotes the gallery worn by the stream in the foreground of the picture.

If you are ever in Gallup, N. M., or Flagstaff, Ariz., you must try to see this wonder.

Trolley-Car Anniversary.

This year is the thirty-fourth anniversary of the introduction of the modern street car trolley in this country, in Richmond, Va. Since the first Richmond trolley line, street car service has grown prodigiously in the United States. It is said that 15,000,000,000 persons a year ride on trolley cars. According to estimates, the total trackage is 47,555 miles, while there are more than 105,000 street cars operated by 838 companies. The capital invested totals $6,000,000,000, it is said.

The Richmond line was completed May 4, 1888, by Frank J. Sprague, now of New York.

Finally Coughed Up Nail.

Nature has effected a remarkable last hour rescue in the case of an English schoolgirl, who, when at the point of death, coughed up a brass nail swallowed two and a half years ago. The nail, which had turned black and was so rotten that it broke into pieces, had penetrated her lung, and she became a patient at the Royal Gwent hospital, Newport, Monmouthshire, England, where several doctors treated her for tuberculosis. Her condition during that time was more than once regarded as hopeless. It is now expected that she will recover.

Mere Appendage.

"I'm grieved to observe," said the veteran Thespian, "that you are taking your wife's poodle out for an airing. It's beneath your dignity, sir."

"I know it," said Rantington Roarer, the eminent tragedian. "In the old days when I toured the country with a 'Tom' show I was proud to lead a pair of fierce mastiffs in the street parade, but the poodle, sir, as you are well aware, has never contributed anything of note to the American drama."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Turned Down.

"Boss," whined the beggar, "speak to me as man to man. I'm hungry."

"Friend," replied the pedestrian, "speaking as man to man, I have just one dime left for car fare and I propose to see that a greedy corporation gets it."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

MUSIC THAT IS IMMORTAL

Mendelssohn Needs No Other Memorial Than He Left in His Wonderful Wedding March.

Possibly the most famous march ever written is the wedding march from the "Midsummer Night's Dream" by Felix Mendelssohn. Like the overture to his famous work it is a splendid example of Mendelssohn's astonishing musical fertility. The overture is now one hundred years old and is one of the greatest examples of precocity in any art. Although written by a youth of eighteen, it is one of the great classics of the tone art. The march was not written until later, but its glorious burst of exuberant harmony would make it an all-fascinating musical number even though it were not associated with the joyous occasion of marriage festivals. Mendelssohn's musical mind retained these numbers in wonderful fashion. Once when the score of his famous overture was left in a cab in London and lost, he blithely replied, "Never mind, I shall make another." After he had completed this immense work it was compared with the instrumental parts and found to be accurate to the last dot, even though Mendelssohn had made it from memory. Why did not Mendelssohn write other famous marches? He wrote others, but none quite so good as the wedding march. His "March of the High Priests" from "Athalie" is built upon the same formal lines and is an altogether beautiful work in classical march form.

AMBITION IS HARD MASTER

Success Means Concentration and a Willingness to Make Sacrifices for Its Attainment.

Ambition is more than a wish; it is desire intensified into determined purpose. All that is needed for the accomplishment of our ambitions is a desire so strong that we will sacrifice whatever may stand in the way of our success. The law of compensation never fails. If we would gain one thing we must give up another. How many people have you known who complain of failure through bad luck, when your own knowledge of them tells you that their downfall came through lack of really trying? They were not willing to forego pleasures or extravagances which interfered with their success.

Intense effort comes through intense desire which allows nothing to interfere with its purpose. Life is not much without ambition of some kind and unless one is living with a purpose of some sort he is merely whiling away the time, waiting for the call of the grim reaper. Try to make your ambitions worthy ones and then concentrate on fulfilling them. Find out not only what you must do to realize them, but also what you must give up. If you desire strongly enough you will accomplish.—Montreal Family Herald.

Forget That "Hate To" Idea.

Are you one of the "I hate to" family? How often one hears people use that phrase. If you are guilty of using it, try to break yourself of the habit. It doesn't reflect a strong, healthy, vigorous mental attitude. It suggests pettiness, querulousness, lack of the "I will" spirit. The way to conquer a disposition to "hate" so many is to cultivate a cheerful, resolute, beneficent frame of mind. If you fill your heart with love of your fellow mortals and are possessed of a consuming desire to be of service in the world, you will have little room left in you for "hating" this, that or the other thing or person. The forceful person, animated by the right motives, starts more sentences with the words "I like to" than with "I hate to." Get this thought into your mind: If you are constantly "hating," the cause lies within yourself.—Forbes Magazine.

Sailing, Lashed to Trees.

Great trains of driftwood, bound for the Arctic, forever sail the Mackenzie river, and the voyager who happens to be going along with this forest debris often presses it into service instead of regarding it as an obstacle.

The larger trees which retain their branches can be utilized to make progress against an up-river wind, for these submerged boughs are just as effective as an underwater sail.

And there are lots of other advantages. By lashing to a suitable tree the traveler can cook his meals on the way, and if he wants to get forward by night his canoe may be secured to an Arctic-bound tree and he may go serenely to asleep while continuing the journey.

Strange Mistake.

Give me the right word and the right accent and I will move the world.

What a dream for a writer! Because written words have their accent, too. Yes! Let me only find the right word! Surely it must be lying somewhere among the wreckage of all the plaints and all the exultations poured out aloud since the first day when hope, the undying, came down to earth. It may be there, close by, disregarded, invisible, quite at hand. But it's no good. I believe there are men who can lay hold of a needle in a pottle of hay at the first try. For myself, I have never had such luck.—Joseph Conrad.

The Size of the Bill.

"I thought you told me it was to be a minor operation?"

"So it was, my dear sir."

"But I could have had a major operation for the sum you've charged me."

Unanimous.

"Have the ladies of the jury brought in their verdict yet?" "You mean 'Guilty' or 'Not Guilty'?" "Of course. What else?" "They decided that the woman in the case was a perfect frump without leaving the jury box."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

NEW YORK CITY

Steamer Homer Ramsdell of the Central Hudson Line leaves Kingston at 6:45 a. m. for New York. Returning steamer leaves Franklin street at 4:30 p. m., West 129th street at 5:15. Orchestra on board. Dining and lunch room service. Fare for round trip $1.65.

PLAYGROUNDS ARE WELL PATRONIZED

The Kingston playgrounds this year as in past years are all activity. Each of the three parks of the city is in charge of a supervisor all of whom are doing very effective work in their respective fields At Hasbrouck park one may see almost any day a game of baseball going on with no more quarreling and wrangling than might be seen at any other game where older persons were participating. The work here is carried on in such an interesting manner that it has become a rendezvous for practically all the children of the neighborhood. Games have been played between teams representing this park and teams representing the Y. M. C. A. which to date have resulted in the Y. M. C. A. team being victorious in the two games which have been played.

All the parks are well equipped and are proving a decided benefit to the children of the city. The tennis courts at Forsyth Parfk are in use at all times by the young people of the city and by continuous practice some individuals are becoming stars in every sense of the word. Kingston can well be proud of the fact that the parks in this city are on a par with those of any other city its size.

GIRL SCOUT CAMP WILL ACCOMMODATE FIVE MORE

The Girl Scout Camp at Ideal Park starts their second month of pleasurable training for girls between the ages of twelve and eighteen. The past month the camp facilities has been filled to its capacity and a great amount of interest has been shown both on the part of the girls and their parents.

There are accommodations open for one week for five girls, the camp week beginning on Wednesday, August 9. A girl doesn't have to be a scout to enjoy this camp and it is expected that this opportunity will be sought for by many of the girls in the city. The camp activities consist of tennis, swimming and hiking under the instruction of trained and skilled masters. This is an unusual opportunity to enjoy a profitable vacation. Application should be made to Miss Martha Davis, No. 74 John street, this city.

Last Night's Fights.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

At Zanesville, O.—Ted Block, Detroit and Johnny Shea, Cleveland, fought a 12-round draw. Block broke his hand in the second round, but managed to hang on for the distance.

Red McDonald, Toledo, outpointed K. O. Circus, Pittsburgh, ten rounds.

Toughy Maynew, Toledo, outpointed Billy Freeman, Zanesville, 10 rounds.

A Moonlight Social.

Will your safe stand this?

AFTER several hours of terrific heat, when the building falls and brick walls, heavy girders and debris carry your safe down into the very heart of the raging furnace, will your safe continue to protect your valuable papers? The New Herring-Hall-Marvin Safe will!

For five and one-quarter hours it withstood the killing heat of a temperature raging up to 2100 degrees Fahrenheit, without even endangering the papers within. The inside temperature was never over 300 degrees.

Interchangeable filing equipment for the interior to suit your requirements.

The sixteen larger sizes bear the "A" Label of the Underwriters' Laboratories, Inc.; the six smaller sizes bear the "B" Label. Manufactured by the Herring-Hall-Marvin Safe Co., Hamilton, Ohio

TAGGING ALL THE BASES.

The Giants expressed themselves out of first place when they got an even break with the Cubs, 3 to 2, and 2 to 1. The two refugees from Boston, McQuillan and Scott, pitched for the champions and the former backfired in the ninth inning, the Cubs winning with a three-run rally.

When is a homer not a homer? Powell, of the Braves, will tell you. He hit one in the ninth inning against Adams and the Pirates, but the rain stopped the proceedings and the game reverted to the eighth inning, everything else being declared void.

The Tigers ran their string up to eight straight by taking another fall out of the non-stop Red Sox, 2 to 0, Dauss outpointing Pennock in the pinches.

The Dodgers waited until the ninth before they lost another ball game, showing that they are not only consistent, but versatile. A two run rally against Reuther pulled the game out for the Reds, 6 to 5.

Getting into their stride while the rest of the field is turning toward the stretch, the Senators made it three in a row when Zachary stopped the White Sox 3 to 2.

The Cards marched into first place by gaining a conventional victory over the Phils, 9 to 7. Leslie, Mokan and Williams hit homers off Sherdell, Williams getting his 18th of the season. It was like the eighteenth amendment. Nothing ever came of it.

George Herman Ruth smacked number 19 of the current campaign during the course of the Yankees' 7 to 5 victory over the Indians, their third in succession. Ruth's fielding also sparkled.

The Browns kept pace with the Yankees by turning back the Athletics; who turn back almost automatically. Score 9 to 4. Vangilder was found for 14 hits but most of their fragrance was wasted on the humid air peculiar to St. Louis.

CURRENT OFFERINGS AT THE THEATERS.

Norma Talmadge in "Smilin' Through," bids farewell to Keeney patrons after the last two performances tonight, and from the avalanche of praise and testimonials from thousands of Kingston people it has been a joy and inspiration such as seldom comes in a moving picture play. Not one adverse criticism has been heard and many have come to see "their Norma" twice, so enraptured have they been with her exquisite acting in this beautiful story.

John Barrymore in the one picture in four-hundred, "The Lotus Eater," is showing at Keeney's Monday and Tuesday with a cast of players who are very popular here, including Wesley Barry, Anna Q. Nillson, Colleen Moore and J. Barney Sherry. John Barrymore gives one of the best performances of his screen career as a star. It is one of the most diverting satirical productions within memory.

A western thriller. "Trimmed," starring popular Hoot Gibson, is showing at the Auditorium tonight. It's the story of a war hero who turned his town upside down to win the girl he loved and proved he was just as brave as a sheriff as he was as an A. E. F. sergeant. A century comedy and news weekly are also featured. Monday will be double feature day, offering Irene Castle in "The Mark of Cain," also Elaine Hammerstein in "Evidence."

Surely a Genius.

A man in a small town had a son who returned home from dental college and opened an office for practice. At the end of a week the neighbors told one another that "practice" was indeed the proper word; and one of them even went so far as to suggest to the young dentist's fond father that a man should be of a mechanical turn of mind in order to be a successful dentist.

"Why," exclaimed the father, "Jim is a genius! One day last summer I sent him to cultivate the orchard, and a cultivator tooth caught under a root; whereupon the boy took his pocketknife and tried to cut the root off. But, finding it slow work, he hammered his knife into the root with a rock until he broke the blade. Then a bright thought came to him. Getting a club, he whipped the mules until the cultivator broke and he was free."—Youth's Companion.

Long Wear to Rubbers.

Rubbers will wear longer if a half-inch layer of tissue paper is crushed into the heel. The paper will form a cushion for the hard heel of the shoe and lessen the wear on the rubbers.
